BANK LOOTER FLED WITH $200,000 CASH

Joseph B. Marcino, the barber-banker who looted the First National Bank of Warren, then fled South, has taken at least $200,000 cash with him over the Mexican border, according to estimates today from Buffalo.

But a round million will not tell the whole tale of losses to banks, other financial institutions and private individuals in Marcino's coast-to-coast operations in the last few years, as viewed in accumulating reports from here to California.

Amounts known to have been lost by the First National of Warren, by other institutions and claimed or reported to have been separated from persons—including $250,000 from Abe Goldman of Chicago, Marcino's father-in-law—roll up to $933,000.

This total does not include whatever losses may have been incurred by a half-dozen Middle West and Western banks crossed by the financial trail of this emigrant from Genoa.

Like Columbus, the Genoese of 400 years ago, Marcino was also a discoverer. Columbus discovered the country, but Marcino discovered its easy money.

HINTS AT SUICIDE.

The estimate of $200,000 as Marcino's cash-in-pocket was of extra interest in view of a hint at suicidal intent in one of his letters to his father-in-law.

This letter, dated at Buffalo but mailed near the Mexican border, gave clew to the direction of the barber banker's flight, sketched his financial career and set up a terrific wail of honest intentions hounded by the authorities.

Suicide or a life of suffering were cited by Marcino as his only alternatives now.

Federal and New York State officials, according to despatches from Buffalo, said, however, that if Marcino contemplated suicide it would not be for lack of funds.

$200,000 STILL MISSING.

While the amount that he may have had in his possession after the collapse of the Niagara Life Insurance Company and the closing of his Philadelphia and Warren banks has been scaled down by elimination of duplicate transactions, there is a total of more than $200,000 cash that cannot be accounted for.

It is known that upon reaching Philadelphia, Marcino showed the

MANIAC BEATS GIRL

Assailant Leaves Victim Unconscious and Escapes in Cambridge

A burley man, believed to be a dangerous maniac, kicked and pummelled a pretty Cambridge girl into unconsciousness and escaped.

Marjorie Kelleher of No. 1 Day street, Cambridge, was the victim. She is near hysteria as a result of the attack.

While on her way to visit with Bertha Carew, a chum, at No. 23 Valentine street, Cambridge, a man rushed at Miss Kelleher from behind and gagged her with a silk muffler.

He threw her to the ground, she said, and beat her. As she lay helpless, he punched her face. She struggled and the gag slipped away.

"Yell, kid! yell now!" the man exclaimed, she said, beating her the while. She screamed several times, and lapsed into unconsciousness.

The attack occured near No. 19 Fairmount street and three men lodgers at that address answered the girl's cries.

They came to the rescue and the attacker fled through an alley and escaped, according to one of them, George Ackins, who says he saw the man run.

Miss Kelleher was revived and later taken to her home. A grey cap was found at the spot. It was besotted with grease, the police say.

GARMENT PICKETER ARRESTED

Manufacturers Refuse 10 Per Cent. Raise in Pay; Would Yield Other Demands

A few few minutes before Max Norman, acting for the garment manufacturers of Greater Boston, announced that they would not accede to a demand for a 10 per cent. raise, Annie Kaplan of No. 19 Evelyn street, Dorchester, was arrested while picketing before the Hub Dress Manufacturing Company at No. 19 Bedford street.

The 3,000 or more striking shirt and waist makers presented a series of demands in addition to the pay raise clause and these dealt with working conditions. This report today of the employers was the second they have made to the petitions of the workers.

Mr. Norman said to The Boston American: "We are willing to compromise on some of the demands and we will grant others, but this demand for a ten per cent. increase for all workers is unjustified in the opinion of the manufacturers."

Just what compromises the employers are willing to make and what demands they are willing to grant are not generally known. These accessions, however, do not meet with the favor of the rank and file of the United Garment Worker's Union. They say they will hold out.

The arrest today was the first of the strike. Patrolman Leavitt of Orange Street Station, the arresting officer, charged that she was making a disturbance and was disorderly.

U. S. PROBES MILITIA 'BAN'

Reported By-Law of Steamfitters All Nonsense, Says Union Head

State and National agencies today started an investigation of the United Association of Steamfitters and Plumbers as result of charges by Colonel Thomas F. Foley of the 101st Infantry of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Colonel Foley declared that a by-law in the constitution of the labor body forbids members from joining the National Guard during times of peace. Thus no member of the organization would ever be called on to do strike duty in times of emergency.

"This borders closely on treason if it is true," Colonel Foley said today in commenting on his action in turning over reports to Secretary of War Weeks and Adjutant General Jesse F. Steen.

Replying to the accusations of Colonel Foley, F. J. Donahue, secretary of Plumbers' Local, No. 12, today said: "That is all nonsense. We have had many members of our union in the National Guard during the five years I have been here as a secretary.

"In that time I have never known a man to be questioned in any way or advised concerning his connection with the guard. Any bylaws which may have been dug up are no more effective in the union than some of the old blue laws, which still stand in the State statute books."

Contrasted with this is the emphatic assertion of Captain William C. Whiting of A Company, 101st Infantry. He says one of the men of his company sought a resignation and that this man, when pressed for details, made a statement that officials of his union ordered him to resign and stressed his obligation to live up to the by-law.

Adjutant General Stevens said: "If the reports published are true, I am convinced there has been a violation of the law by which the persons involved can be punished by a fine of $500 and six months in jail. There will be an investigation."

The United Steamfitters and Plumbers' Association is country-wide in scope. Therefore, the national government started a probe also.

12 DEAD IN KANSAS CITY FIRE

Five Others Missing in Blaze That Sweeps Tenement and Traps Victims

Kansas City, Kansas, Feb. 23.—Twelve persons are known to have been burned to death in a fire which destroyed a two-story rooming house here today.

Five others are reported missing. The identified dead are:

Mrs. Elisha Colston and her children, Violet and John.

Bodies of five adults and seven children have been recovered.

Firemen are checking up on the occupants of the house.

TRAPPED AS THEY SLEPT.

The Brown family, all of whose members perished, occupied three rooms, under their windows firemen recovered six bodies.

Origin of the fire has not ben determined. It is believed to have resulted from spontaneous combustion, augmented by oil in the garage on the ground floor.

None of the occupants appeared to have been awakened by the flames. A passerby saw the blaze and gave the alarm.

Within thirty minutes after the first alarm the roof collapsed.

BIG BRITISH RUM FLEET OFF COAST

$7,000,000 Liquor Cargo Reported Aboard Ships Headed for Sandy Hook Haven

New York, Feb. 23.—"There is nothing in the rum running line that could surprise me any more, after all I have seen of it," declared John C. Appleby, assistant Federal prohibition director for the New York district today in commenting on a report that a huge rum fleet, bearing part of a $7,000,000 consignment from England, would anchor off Sandy Hook tonight.

Appleby had "heard the story." He did not know "whether they were doing anything about it."

But he "wouldn't be surprised" if it were true.

The Governor is said to be aware of the activities of the syndicate back of the reported shipment.

According to the story which is filtering through the financial district here and also making the rounds of the shipping centre, the syndicate is operated by a man who is said to have won and lost at least two fortunes in Wall street.

No preparations have been made to receive the "flagship" of the "Atlantic fleet" when she comes to her anchorage three miles out at sea off the Hook tonight.

FAIR AND COLD TO STAY A FEW DAYS

Strong northwest winds tonight and tomorrow, with continued low temperatures, were predicted by the Weather Man today. The only consoling feature about the prediction is the promise of fair weather and warm sunshine. Temperatures are expected to go as low as ten to fifteen above zero around Boston, while in the North the mercury may drop to ten below before tomorrow.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 23.—Carl J. Voigt, his wife and two children were driven to the street today when fire destroyed the three-story brick building at Thames street and Dean avenue. The fire broke out in the second floor and extended to the third. The cause of the fire is attributed to an oil stove. Damage is estimated $10,000.

RESCUE THE CREW OF ABANDONED STEAMER

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 23.—The Swedish steamer Storvik wirelessed to the Marine Fisheries Department today that she had rescued the crew of the steamer Helena Tooline, which had been abandoned about 200 miles north of the Bermudas.

The steamer Helena Tooline does not appear in available shipping records.

Operations of $10,000,000 Counterfeiting Gang Extend to Hub

Operations of the gigantic $10,000,000 counterfeiting ring, which has just resulted in sixty-four arrests in New York, extended to Boston and are in process here now.

Only this week, a counterfeit $20 bill, purporting to have been issued by a bank in Grand Rapids, Mich., was discovered here. It was passed on a chain store.

Secret Service agents, who have made several arrests and obtained several convictions for "shoving the queer," as it is called in counterfeiters' slang, know that Boston has been made a less healthy place for such operations in the past few months. But the trail boks up here and there, as shown by the Michigan "bank note."

One of the most interesting things about the $10,000,000 ring is the established scale of prices of the captured by Criminal Investigation Department officers of the Free State government in a raid at Drumcondra it was stated by army headquarters.

Fitzpatrick is said to be Commandant of the Dublin Brigade of Irregulars.

It is understood a meeting of the first Dublin battalion of Irregulars was proceeding at the time of the arrests.

A rumor was in circulation that Eamon De Valera had been arrested in the raid, but of this there is no confirmation.

The residence of Michael Doyle, member of the Dail Eireann for Wexford, was burned to the ground last night at Tagout.

Nicholas Williams, a member of the Dublin defence force, was shot dead at Drumcondra. It is believed the shooting was accidental.

A large band of men armed with rifles last evening raided the post-office at Black Rock, a seaside resort near Dundalk. Louth Village was similarly visited.

The Free State commissioners of inland revenue announced today that, beginning April 1, duty will be collected on all dutiable commodities entering the Free State from foreign countries, including Great Britain and northern Ireland.

"It will be necessary," the announcement said, "to establish a customs frontier between the Free State and northern Ireland, which, pending the boundary commission decision, will be temporarily along the boundary of the six northern counties and the twenty-six Free State counties."

With the exception of farm produce, all imports and exports over the Ulster boundary will be limited to routes and hours approved by the ministry of finance.

DIGS OWN GRAVE AND DIES AFTER ROW WITH WIFE

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—Life was dull and drab for Eugene Merkle, gravedigger in Green Mount Cemetery, Trenton avenue and Bristol street, and a thought to end it all was in his mind as he finished opening a new grave.

There had been trouble between himself and his wife, who left him. So, as he dug the grave, he decided to die.

Throwing aside his spade, he climbed to the surface and picked up a piece of rope, one end of which he made fast to the limb of a tree. The other end he noosed about his neck. Then he climbed the tree and jumped.

The rope broke and Merkle fell into the open grave he had dug. Other employes saw him jump and found him unconscious in the grave.

He was taken to the Episcopal Hospital, where surgeons found his skull was fractured. He died a few hours later without regaining consciousness.

MRS. CROKER DENIES SHE'LL WED TRAINER

West Palm Beach, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Bula Croker is so indignant over newspaper reports that she was engaged to wed a trainer from her stables at Glen Cairne, near Dublin, that she has cabled Joe La Earman, of this city, asking him to deny the rumors. Mrs. Croker's mother, who lives at the Croker estate, the Wigwam, near here, sent her daughter clippings. Mrs. Bula Croker is the widow of Richard Croker, for years the great Tammany leader of New York.

Conciliators of the Department of Labor have succeeded in settling a strike of 2,500 employes of the Ludlow Cotton Mills, Secretary Davis was advised at Washington today.

15,000 CONDEMN FRENCH IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 23.—Although 15,000 persons jammed Madison Square Garden until early today in a mass meeting of protest against French occupation of the Ruhr, cheering every mention of Germany and according a sepulchral silence to every mention of France, there was no work for 800 police officers detailed to the scene in anticipation of trouble.

The meeting ended with the adoption of resolutions urging the United States to settle the difficulties between Germany and France.

There was tumult when Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, one of the speakers, suggested:

"Let all of Germany's possessions be returned."

King Tut to Set Styles for Women This Spring

Washington, Feb. 22.—Old Tut-Ankh-Amen may have had little to say about styles back in the days he ruled, but he will have plenty of influence on women's modes this Spring.

Official Washington learned this when a manufacturer applied for a patent on the names he desires to use as a trade-mark for a new Egyptian bag.

Department heads in the copyright division are expecting a flood of Egyptian music, books, dramas and photographs. They say any world event is mirrored by the applications pouring in afterward.

"queer" to those who distribute it and the regular grades of operators.

It is like a distribution of legitimate wares, such as shoes or any manufactured product.

The distribution links include: Counterfeiter sells the "queer" to wholesalers at 25 cents good money for every dollar of bad. Wholesalers sell to jobbers at 35 cents on the dollar. Jobbers send out salesmen on commission. Salesmen sell to retailers or pushers at 50 cents on the dollar. Salesmen pass the bad money at face value, getting 100 per cent. profit and taking a risk of detection with every transaction.

The "shovers" usually work in pairs. A and B, for example, buy $1,000 in bogus $20 bills from a salesman for $500 in good money.

METHOD OF "SHOVING."

A takes one of the bad twenties, it stuffs the other forty-nine in his pockets. They start out. A buys a dollar's worth of something in a small store and gets $19 good money in change for the bad twenty. He rejoins B, who waited outside, turns over the $19 in change and takes another bad twenty. Then B trails behind A to a second store for another operation.

If A is arrested he can say he took the bad twenty from anybody. But the major evidence, the other bad bills, are on B, who has yet to be caught. This two-man trick makes the task of Federal agents infinitely more difficult.

GIRL FIGHTS OFF ASSAILANT IN STORE

Mrs. Irene Webb of No. 476 Massachusetts avenue, twenty years old, was the victim of a bold daylight attack by a negro in a Summer street graphophone store, she told the police.

Mrs. Irene Webb

Her assailant has followed her several times in the past few weeks, she said. He posed as a customer of the store in which she is employed, and when she turned her back to get a record he asked for, the man grabbed her by the wrist and tried to throw her to the floor, she said.

STRUGGLES MINUTES.

She declared she struggled with the man for several minutes and finally succeeded in pushing him out the door. The man walked hastily down Summer street toward the South Station, and the girl said she told a passerby that she had been attacked. This man pursued the alleged attacker, she said, but lost him in Lincoln street.

Mrs. Webb one night last week noticed the negro patrolling in front of the store, she said. She called the attention of a policeman to him and the man is said to have walked away.

Mr. Webb

On another occasion, he followed her to work, and several times she has seen him standing at Massachusetts avenue and Tremont street as she passed, according to her story.

The young matron was formerly Irene Thompson of Somerville. She attended Somerville High School and was married two years ago.

HINDU WIDOW COMMITS SATI, 3 SENTENCED

Calcutta, Feb. 22.—A case of sati, reported from the Etawah district, indicates that the ancient Hindu custom of widow suicide has not disappeared.

Sati is the name given to a Hindu widow who throws herself upon the funeral pyre of her husband and dies by the fire which consumed his remains. A British law making the abettor of a sati liable to conviction for suicide or murder has tended to cause the rite to die out.

In the case reported from Etawah, one Ganga Din Ahir died after a brief illness. His wife announced her intention to become a sati.

On the following morning, when the body of Ganga Din was taken for cremation, the widow, dressed as a bride, mounted the pyre and sat with her husband's head in her lap while fire was applied to the wood.

As a result of the woman's death, a criminal case was started against six men of the village. Three were acquitted and three sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

GAS ATTACK ON DAVID COLONY PLANNED

St. Joseph, Mich., Feb. 23.—A rebellion against the rule of Benjamin Purnell of the House of David, the Benton Harbor religious colony, the leading of the Shiloh Building, headquarters of the sect, after a "gas attack"; seizure of $250,000 supposed to be in the building, and the setting up of a new colony, to be known as the "League of Nations," and over which a woman was to rule as "Queen," were being planned in 1920 when John W. Hansel of Nashville, Tenn., was expelled from the sect, according to the bill of particulars in a suit filed in Circuit Court here by Purnell.

The head of the colony seeks to recover $100,000 damages from Hansel and eight other former members of the cult, who are alleged to have been parties to the reputed conspiracy to wreck the organization. Walter M. Nelson of Detroit, attorney for two of the respondents, also is named in the bill.

"Threats, force and violence" were to be used in disrupting the colony, the bill declares, in detailing the alleged plot.

The "queen" of the new colony, which was to have been built on the banks of the St. Joseph's River, opposite the present settlement, was to have been Gertrude Bulby, formerly a leader among the women of the cult.

Purnell's suit follows action in the courts taken by Hansel and two other respondents, Mrs. Ruth Bamford Reed and her sister, Mrs. Gladys Bamford Rubel of Detroit.

POINTS GUN AT LYNN WOMAN

Fred L. Packard, Brockton shoeworker, arrived in Lynn looking for work but found moonshine and then double trouble.

He hired a room at Miss Hazel Kirk's lodging house, No. 178 Union street. At midnight there was a terrible clatter. Lodgers were startled by Packard running up and down stairs, flourishing a revolver. He pointed the weapon at Miss Kirk, who stepped into a telephone closet and called the police.

In Lynn Court today Packard was given six months for having the revolver. Then more trouble came in form of an old charge of larceny of a watch from a Lynn lodging house on a previous visit four years ago. Two months for this. Packard appealed.

Watch Copper and Cotton
Purple Cloak Golf Ball
It's a Young World
Royal Romance Gone

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright 1923 Hearst Co

THE BEST business and prosperity news for this country you find in the prices of cotton and copper, both boiling up most genially.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER is out, playing golf, his cold gone. You will see a moving picture of him "dropping" a 14-foot putt, and intensely delighted in the news reel.

Alexander, addressing his dissatisfied generals, held up his purple cloak, saying that was all that he had got out of it. Mr. Rockefeller might hold up his little golf ball and putter, saying, "This is about all I get out of it."

Alexander and Rockefeller, however, got one other thing, which is the sense of power. The value and satisfaction of that you cannot well estimate.

DR. GORDON, head of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, says the civilization of Mesopotamia, fertile land built up by the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, is older than that of Egypt.

The temple to the moon god discovered at Ur on the lower Euphrates is believed to be seven thousand years old, oldest building known on earth.

It was used steadily for four thousand years, rebuilt in the days of Nebuchadnezzar, 600 B. C. These figures show what a young thing our civilization, or rather, our more highly developed barbarism, really is.

MEN HAVE lived on the earth at least two or three hundred thousand years. That is proved beyond question. If it took them two or three thousand centuries to develop our limitation of civilization, how long will it take us to develop a real civilization? Luckily there is no hurry, for scientists tell you the earth has still several hundred million years to go. Our principal difficulty may be dealing with the various ice movements as they recur. Engineering will manage that and eventually, perhaps, fight surplus ice from the North with surplus heat from the equator.

ROMANCE HAS gone from royalty. Prince Miguel, who might have been King of Portugal, dies of pneumonia in New York.

He has a little house in Tuxedo, a little flat in Newport, a little flat uptown, a little partnership in the office of an insurance broker, and some American children called "Princes."

That is less exciting than sending your ships out after the Spanish ships of Columbus or having the whole world divided with "a straight line" between you and another monarch. The life of royalty today is as unreal as the life of a royal Bengal tiger in the Zoo.

FROM AFRICA comes news of the death of King Khama, ninety-five years old.

A chief in Bechuanaland, son of a witch doctor and polygamist, King Khama might have had an exciting time. But he settled down to be a Christian, with only one wife and prohibition advo-

Diva Reported to Have Been Accused of Neglecting Magnate McCormick

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Monday, February 19: Ganna Walska McCormick, leaving Philadelphia with her multi-millionaire husband on her concert tour, told interviewers: "We are starting on our honeymoon."

Tuesday, Feb. 20: Ganna Walska McCormick gave her first performance in Detroit. "No voice," said the critics.

Wednesday, Feb. 21: Harold F. McCormick came to Chicago and left the same night for San Diego with Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, his mother, while Ganna Walska McCormick, after a "honeymoon" of two days, went on East for her second concert appearance at Niagara Falls. Before starting West, Mr. McCormick posed for pictures, but refused to be interviewed.

APPEARANCE POSTPONED.

Feb. 22: Ganna Walska McCormick at Niagara Falls, asked about her separation from her husband, said: "Madame McCormick has only her son—I have my manager."

Also Wessels and Voegeli, who had planned Ganna Walska McCormick's Chicago concert in Orchestra Hall for March 5, announced that a telegram from her manager, Jules Daiber, "had indefinitely postponed" her Chicago appearance.

Diaber, also wired the cancellation to Boston and New York, where Ganna was to have sung.

Mme. Walska's action came after an unsuccessful "big town" debut at Detroit Tuesday night. The Detroit music critics "panned" the ambitious singer unmercifully, declaring she could not sing, had no voice and had failed utterly to establish her claims to talents fitting her for grand opera.

Earlier in the day Ganna had been quoted as defying the Detroit critics, insisting she had reserved her best efforts for her appearance in her rich husband's home town and relying on the New York, Boston and Chicago critics to vindicate her.

The chronology started a buzz of gossip in Chicago society. The "I told you so" faction insisted that it was the end of the romance that took two marriages to legalize. They professed to know that ever since the first wedding in Paris, Ganna's waking hours have been too filled with hair-dressers, dressmakers, masseurs, diamond merchants and music instructors to give Harold the amount of time he believed due a new husband.

MEMORIAL TREES TO HONOR MRS. LOGAN

Washington, Feb. 23.—The American Tree Association announced that it would issue a call today for the planting of memorial trees for Mrs. John A. Logan, widow of the Civil War general, who died here yesterday. With expressions of regret at headquarters of the association here at Mrs. Logan's death, it was recalled that one of her last public acts was the planting of a memorial tree for Clara Barton.

BEAUTIES OF FOLLIES QUARREL

Miss Worthing of Boston and Phoebe Lee Part as Enemies

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 23.—A slight rift has occurred in the ranks of the Follies' girls who have been sojourning at Palm Beach. Some say a dog caused the trouble. But perhaps the strain of living together at the Royal Poinciana in one room was too much for Phoebe Lee and Helen Lee Worthing, Ziegfeld beauties.

At any rate Phoebe Lee has packed up her two dozen pretty gingham frocks that caused a sensation and has returned to New York.

TYPES OF BEAUTY.

That storm clouds were gathering has been apparent for some time.

Where the two girls first played around together during the noon bathing hour, they later had their little courts on separate parts of the the sands. Miss Worthing refused to be photographed with Miss Lee when pictures of the gingham frocks were made.

FAMILY SKELETONS.

At another time an argument came up on the subject of whether a Follies girl should bare to the world her family skeletons if she happened not to have sprung full-grown from the social register.

Miss Worthing berated a reporter who wrote that she had once been a stenographer.

Miss Lee declared that for her part it would be foolish to attempt to conceal the fact that she had been a manicure, when she had buffed the nails of no less than twenty men at the moment visiting in Palm Beach.

The dog Jake looks like a cocoanut, but is a valuable and lovable canine. Miss Lee objected to him. Miss Worthing was very fond of him.

MILEAGE BOOKS' RULING FOUGHT BY RAILROADS

Washington, Feb. 23.—Railroad representatives before the Interstate Commerce Commission today gave notice of the possible intent of the carriers to institute court proceedings to block the recent decision ordering re-establishment of the interchangeable mileage book system giving reductions of twenty per cent. to travelers.

"Before going any further with this matter," Henry Wolfe Bikle, counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad, who also spoke for all eastern lines, told the commission, "I want to give notice that any step taken here is taken subject to our right to litigate the commission's decision or to protest in any way against any detail or principle involved in it. Subject to that reservation we are prepared to discuss the rules and regulations which may be put into effect if the sale of mileage books is eventually authorized."

A series of tentative railroad rules governing the issue and use of the mileage books was then presented.

QUARTERED IN THREE TOWNS

By CAROLINE V. KERR.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to Universal Service.

Essen, Feb. 23. — Worried over the dissatisfaction which has broken out among some of her white troops, as manifested in late days by several mutinous incidents, France is beginning to replace her white forces with more trustworthy black troops.

France still declares to other countries, however, that she is not inflicting black troops upon the white populations of the German occupied territory.

Only recently the French foreign office complained that the Hearst newspapers in America were printing false news that colored troops were in the Ruhr. I came to the Ruhr to learn the truth for myself. Any doubt about the matter is removed by the facts.

HALF ARE BLACK.

Three more battalions of 600 men and nine officers each have arrived in the Ruhr. They are quartered in the towns of Valhert, Werden and Kupfergreh.

Half of these troops, as I saw for myself, are of the pure African negro type, black as the blackest of our Southern negroes.

I was in the office of the burgomaster in Velbert, half way between Essen and Elberfeld, today, talking to that official, when the commander of a French colored battalion there came in to tell the Mayor that he had arrested the postmaster. He also informed the burgomaster that he had ordered the black troops to remain in their quarters and not mix with the population.

FEVER OF INDIGNATION.

With the commander was an adjutant and four soldiers. Two of the latter were blacks. The commander asked the burgomaster to keep the population quiet. The burgomaster replied that the population, which is chiefly composed of iron workers, is at a fever of indignation over the humiliation of having black troops quartered in the town. He expressed the hope that the troops would be kept in their quarters, declaring that otherwise he could not say what the excited people might do in their frenzy.

Notwithstanding their promise to keep to their quarters, I saw the black soldiers everywhere about town.

WERDEN ARMED CAMP.

The blacks are quartered in a restaurant and dance hall, and are being fed at their own canteen, as the town people refuse to sell to them.

In Werden I saw another battalion. Werden is a veritable armed camp, made the more warlike because of its large artillery park in which are several huge long range guns of the warship type.

Large sections of the Ruhr are highly excited over the presence of the blacks, particularly in view of the promise of General Degoutte that they would not be used.

There are unverified reports that these are only the vanguard, and that larger numbers are coming.

GERMAN KILLED IN NEW RUHR CLASH

Mayence, Feb. 23.—Eight German railway employes today were sentenced to sixty days in prison by a French military court for supplying funds to strikers. The French issued a warning that German workers should not give assistance nor comfort to strikers in the Ruhr and Rhineland. Several other Germans, accused of being ringleaders in the anti-French demonstration at the time of the trial of Fritz Thyssen and other German coal magnates, were sentenced to thirty days each.

Duesseldorf, Feb. 23 (By Associated Press).—Blood has again been shed in the Ruhr in the course of a French "digging-in" process.

One German civilian was killed and two others seriously wounded at Bochum when two French soldiers fired upon a crowd that had gathered to watch the occupation of the Law Courts Building.

Observers said that the shooting was done by Poilus, who were obviously irritated by the jeers of the bystanders.

The decision of the French and Belgian Premiers to operate the railroads through an allied civil administration is seen here as a move to improve transportation conditions, although General Payot asserts that the railroads already operating under French and Belgian supervision are doing their work.

The functioning of the allied customs ring is threatened with difficulties in consequence of Berlin's order that no taxes be paid to the occupiers. Such payments, the Federal Minister of Finance has decreed, will not be recognized by the German government.

German customs officials have been reminded of the responsibility to the Reich and of the government's confidence that they will resist seizure of their offices with as much firmness as had been shown by industrial workers.

SELF MASTERY Through Conscious AUTOSUGGESTION

Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE

Formerly, imagining that suggestions could only be given during sleep, I always tried to put my patient to sleep; but on discovering that it was not indispensable I left off doing it in order to spare him the dread and uneasiness he almost always experiences when he is told that he is going to be sent to sleep, and which often makes him offer, in spite of himself, an involuntary resistance. If, on the contrary, you tell him that you are not going to put him to sleep as there is no need to do so, you gain his confidence. He listens to you without fear or any ulterior thought, and it often happens—if not the first time, anyhow very soon—that, soothed by the monotonous sound of your voice, he falls into a deep sleep from which he awakes astonished at having slept at all.

If there are sceptics among you—as I am quite sure there are—all I have to say to them is: "Come to my house and see what is being done, and you will be convinced by fact."

You must not, however, run away with the idea that autosuggestion can only be brought about in the way I have described. It is possible to make suggestions to people without their knowledge and without any preparation. For instance, if a doctor who by his title alone has a suggestive influence on his patient, tells him that he can do nothing for him, and that his illness is incurable, he provokes in the mind of the latter an autosuggestion which may have the most disastrous consequences; if, however, he tells him that his illness is a serious one, it is true, but that with care, time and patience he can be cured, he sometimes and even often obtains results which will surprise him.

DEMANDS CHINA ACT ON KILLING OF AMERICAN

Washington, Feb. 23.—In one of the sternest protests since the Lusitania notes to Germany, the United States government has made six specific demands on the government of China as a result of the murder of Charles Coltman, an American citizen, at the Kalgan gate of the great wall of China.

Coltman was shot by Chinese soldiers while seated in an automobile beside American Consul Sokobin, and it is regarded as a mere accident that the consul was not hit.

The six demands made by this government are:

That the Chinese make a formal apology.

That the Tutang of Chahar make formal apology to Consul Sokobin.

That the responsible officials, presumably Chief of Staff Meng and his aide, be removed from office with a pledge that they will never again be given official employment.

That the responsible officials in charge of the situation at the time of the shooting be tried under Chinese law to determine their exact responsibility and if found guilty that they be punished in accordance with Chinese law.

That the family of Coltman be indemnified for his death.

That there be a clear understanding that Americans in the pursuit of their legitimate business may transport silver about China independent of embargo and local restrictions.

Since the case first was taken up early last December there have been numerous exchanges between the State Department and the Chinese Foreign Office, but thus far China has failed to give satisfaction.

WOULD LET RUSSIANS USE REFUGEE SHIPS

By the Associated Press.

Manila, Feb. 23.—Governor-General Leonard Wood today recommended to the Philippine Legislature the passage of a bill authorizing the Russian refugee ships under Admiral Stark to engage temporarily in the interisland trade.

In his opinion, "such an attitude on the part of the Philippine government and representatives of the Filipino people is of paramount importance and would be looked on favorably by the whole world from the standpoint of humanity."

LOOT DENTIST'S TREMONT ST. OFFICE

The police today are investigating the robbery of the office of Dr. Sigman D. Putzman, No. 795 Tremont street. Dr. Putzman reported the thieves got in with false keys and escaped with two fur coats, some gold crowns and bridges valued at about $400. He was insured against burglary.

SENATE AGREES TO TRUCE ON SHIP BILL

Washington, Feb. 23.—An end of the Senate Ship Subsidy bill fight appeare near today, through an agreement made behind closed doors for a temporary armistice in the filibuster which has blocked all business since Monday.

In executive session the Senate agreed to adjourn tonight at 6 o'clock, take up minor bills for two hours tomorrow and then proceed with the ship bill, but with the possibility of a vote in the meantime on a motion for recommittal.

The plans for a break in the filibuster and abandonment of a night session tonight were made after a conference at the White House between President Harding and Senator Curtis of Kansas, assistant Republican leader. The Senate, under its agreement last night, went into executive session to consider confirmation of nominations on reconvening at 11 o'clock and an understanding for the break-up of the filibuster, at least until late tomorrow, was quickly reached.

Willingness of administration leaders to call off a night session tonight and spend two hours tomorrow on minor bills was regarded by ship bill opponents as a sign of dissolution.

After the agreement administration leaders conceded that the ship bill was "as good as dead." Not later than tomorrow night, it was said, the vote on recommital would come, and the bill would be "interred with proper obsequies."

CHILD HEIRESS OF MRS. LEEDS UNSPOILED

New York, Feb. 23.—The fostering care with which the late Mrs. Warner M. Leeds of No. 11 East Sixty-fifth street surrounded her little adopted daughter, Joy Louise, will be maintained by Mr. Leeds, and every effort will be made so to direct her career that she will attain the ideal established for her by her foster mother to study the human family and to do everything for its well-being that the fortune placed under her control will enable her to do.

Joy is ten years old and the filing of her foster mother's will revealed she is the heiress to the tin-plate millions.

"We want to keep her a simple little girl, unspoiled by any special attention," Charles S. Leeds, foster uncle of the girl, said. "Mr. Leeds is very much attached to the child and she is fond of him. I am sorry, but Mrs. Leeds would not have approved publicity for the child; neither does her father. We wish to keep Joy an utterly unspoiled child, without a realization that the money she will control makes her different from other children.

"She is to be raised just as would any other girl in comfortable circumstances, and her education is to be directed toward the attainment of the ambition Mrs. Leeds had for her. She goes to school every day and is a bright, sweet and wholesome child. She finds her chief joy in the Summer time when she can romp and play out of doors at the Leeds Summer home."

Title in Danger

PRINCESS BONCOMPAGNI

Former Margaret Draper of Boston, who may lose her title as result of the annulment of her marriage.

Washington.—Senator Curtis, Republican, Kansas, discussed appointment of a new Veterans' Bureau director today with President Harding. He said the President appeared to have made a selection from among oversees service men.

WILL ASK POPE TO DENY TITLE TO PRINCESS

Paris, Feb. 23. — Americans just arrived from Rome state that society close to the Vatican is humming with gossip concerning Prince Boncompagni who last month achieved the annulment of his marriage to former Margaret Draper of Boston, daughter of General W. A. Draper.

It is declared that the Prince will now ask the Pope to deny his former wife the title of princess. He expects shortly to marry Hula Bill, daughter of the Swedish minister to Paris, which would create the impossible situation of two princesses.

In case of divorce under the French law the wife retains her titles, but the prince argues that his is not a divorce, but an annulment, and that therefore, as he was never legally married to Margaret Draper, she has no right to the title.

HARDING IMPOSED UPON, SAYS SENATOR

Washington, Feb. 23.—President Harding was "grossly, outrageously imposed upon," in ordering the discharge of twenty-eight bureau of engraving employes several months ago, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, told the Senate in disclosing evidence presented before the Senate Committee of Investigation, of which he is a member.

Cleveland, Feb. 23.—Firemen today battled for hours to prevent flames sweeping into 175,000 gallons of explosive oils and varnishes in a fire that caused damage estimated at $200,000 to the factory of the Cleveland Varnish Company. The flames also menaced the factory of the Ohio Varnish Company, which adjoins the burned building.

AUSTRIA-JUGO-SLAVIA TO ADJUST RELATIONS

Belgrade, Feb. 23 (By the Associated Press).—Another effort to adjust relations between Austria and Jugo-Slavia is under way here with discussions between ministerial representatives of each country.

Two conventions are in prospect. One of these, it is said, will relate to the sequestered goods and estates of Austrians in Jugo-Slavia and of Jugo-Slavs in Austria, including the liquidation of debts owed by her or owing to nationals of the respective countries.

MARCINO'S BANK LOOT AMOUNTS TO MORE THAN MILLION

rush to the State banking officials and promised to call the next day to take up notes which had been classed as worthless paper.

He failed to appear and has not since been seen by anyone connected with his financial affairs. It is surmised that word from Warren that an inquiry had been started there caused him to change his mind about parting with the cash.

REGULAR SALES.

The United States attorney's office at Buffalo today reported to the Massachusetts bank examiner the results of inquiries into the sale of securities alleged to have been illegally removed from the Warren bank.

It was said in a statement issued by O'Brian, Potter & Co., Buffalo stock brokers, that the securities were sold in the regular way and that present holders cannot be disturbed in their possession.

Marcino received from O'Brian, Potter & Co. two checks totaling about $200,000 which he immediately turned into cash. Of this sum about $40,000 was placed in the treasury of the Niagara Life Insurance Company to satisfy immediate demands of State Insurance Department examiners who had then began checking up the affairs of the company.

The remainder, it is believed, was taken to Philadelphia to meet the crisis there, but the word from Warren that the securities had been missed convinced Marcino that a second critical situation had arisen which he could not meet, and he disappeared.

ABSOLVES TAYLOR.

In his letter to his father-in-law Marcino declares:

That Frank L. Taylor, the arrested president of the Warren bank, and the others connected with him in his financial juggling are blameless.

That he would have surmounted his financial difficulties were it not for Chief Bank Examiner Hadley of the New York State Insurance Commission; Burke is president of the Niagara Life Insurance Company.)

"There isn't a ray of hope. The catastrophe is imminent.

"It is so cruel for me to advise you of this failure. Especially after you have divested yourself of every reliable asset you had in order to help things along. And although you have lost everything you entrusted me with, still I want you to have faith in me after you consider the events which brought about the chaos.

INTENTIONS HONEST.

"I have been almost two years in foreign countries when I became nostalgic and wanted badly to return to the U. S. with a most honorable intention of living an upright life, and it was my desire at that time to pay all my creditors who had suffered through my previous business ventures just as soon as I would have been able to do so.

"In fact, about the middle of July, 1921, I landed in New York and proceeded immediately to Chicago. For over eighteen months I have proven what I had previously planned. And during that time I have paid several thousand dollars to my creditors, who had given up hopes of ever collecting from me. In many instances I paid claims which I did not have to.

"Four years ago, when I had money to throw, many times I wrote my reports to financial inquiries about myself and gave them to prominent reporters, together with a sealed envelope containing the bait or the sum requested.

BALKED BY LAWYERS.

"Now it is entirely different. I could have secured them just the same, as the almighty dollar buys most anything. But I declined many offers made to me.

"On deciding what line of work I should take up, I chose the life insurance business, and it was through Mr. A. M. Best, the insurance publisher of New York, that I learned that the Niagara Life was for sale. Thereupon I went to Buffalo, where I met Mr. Dixon, president of the company, who also represented the controlling interest, and though he seemed very anxious to sell, yet his price was too stiff.

"I realized that in order to carry on negotiations of this kind I had better secure the services of a lawyer, and therefore engaged Charles Reagh of the firm of Bergman, Reagh, Braun & Severin, Chicago, who, like all other good attorneys, prolonged these negotiations to such an extent that over $19,000 had been wasted without having obtained an option to purchase the Niagara. Then I resolved to stop all and go into another line of business and decided to work on a bank plan.

FORCED UNDER COVER.

"It was evident that I should not appear in any way connected with a bank to avoid trouble and in order to further the end I employed Arthur Maloney to become associated with me. Mr. Maloney had been cashier of the defunct International Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago some years ago and came recommended to me by a friend of mine and I thought that he was the right man.

"After the purchase of the Citizens' State Bank at Fairmount, Ind., the local directors were not satisfied with the management through no fault of mine and it was therefore necessary to sell out to the former owners, at a loss of about $11,000.

"However, Maloney got in touch with the firm of Overstreet & Co., bank brokers, who secured for us the controlling interest of the First National Bank of Weyauwega, Wis., with results that after three months of Maloney's management I had to sell out at a loss of about $30,000 due to certain manipulation of securities.

"With such experience the only thing left for me to do was to secure the Niagara. But this time I went to Cleveland, where I located Mr. Edward Burke, former president of the company, who had been fired by the Dixon crowd for having misused $13,000 of the company's funds. He was very glad to assist me in the purchase for various reasons.

"For ten months I had lost heavily through my other ventures over $30,000. I spent another $30,000 in securing the Niagara in legal fees. I had devoted my time and efforts to the building of the insurance company. I had not drawn a cent from it to refund me for my expenses. I was absolutely honest in all my dealings.

"Yet had I any malice or ill design I could have within two days after May 15th, date on which I got control of the company, gotten possession of about two million dollars in bonds and cash. Such was not the case, as I wanted to create for myself a position in life and was desirous to accomplish what any honorable citizen would desire.

ACQUIRES NIAGARA.

"During the negotiations with the Dixon crowd Mr. Reagh had secured the services of the firm of lawyers of Lesser, Babcock, Syratt & Hollister of Buffalo. Franklin D. Locke, the senior partner of the firm, is also chairman of the board of the Fidelity Trust Company and Manufacturers and Traders National Bank, and it was through him that I secured a loan from the Fidelity Company for $125,000. This loan was secured by the Niagara stock. The balance of the price I paid in cash.

"The legal fees in this matter were only $5,000, while Reagh got from me in all more than $25,000. This purchase was consummated on last May 16.

Everything went along fine until the first part of June, when Mr. Hubbell, president of the Fidelity Bank, called me urgently to his office and to my great surprise notified that my loan, not yet due, had been called, and demanded immediate payment.

HELPED BY GOLDMAN.

"Believe me, papa, that drove me crazy.

"From this very first instant, you realize that my life had been ruined. All my honest and earned efforts could never redeem the loss sustained through the disgraceful reports circulated by all the banks against the Niagara and me. Yet I never lost courage.

"Within ten days of the call of the loan I had paid $35,000 on account, reducing the same to $30,000. Then I came crying to you for help, and you listened to my pleas and came to the rescue.

"I wish you had done as all the others did and turned me down, but you had a big heart and gave me securities which I converted into cash, giving you in return my note for your life savings. I had implicit faith in Monahan and the other officers in Metropolitan.

"Hadley forced me into this. He is the sole person responsible for the loss of money sustained by many innocent depositors. Blum, Lombardi and his friends, with yourself, have lost everything.

EXONERATES TAYLOR.

"The only thing that remains for me to do is to disappear from the face of the earth into oblivion, or endure a life o fsuffering. I want you to know these true facts.

"I don't deserve any consideration from you. I only hope in a few years to repay my creditors through the proceeds of my life insurance. I am sorry for the great worries I have caused you and the loss of all. I haven't the heart to write any of my associates after the treatment they received from me.

"Bless, Sam, Bob and Taylor and all others connected with me are innocent. I was driven to despair by Monahan and Hadley. May God repay them with the punishment they deserve.

(Signed) "JOSEPH MARCINO."

The father-in-law revealed that Marcino had obtained $20,000 from him in about four years.

"ALWAYS IN TROUBLE."

"Whenever he was in trouble he came to me for money," Goldman said. "Four years ago he eloped with my daughter, who was then twenty, to California. Last Sunday he deserted her in Buffalo with their children and she is now living at my home.

"My son-in-law first got in trouble with a bank at San Pedro, California, and after difficulties with another bank in the same State, he fled with my daughter to Mexico and then to Italy. It cost me about $11,000 to straighten out his financial difficulties.

"About a year and a half later he came back from Italy and got involved in more banking difficulties. The first was in Wisconsin. The second was in Indiana.

"After he got into the bank at Warren, he wrote, asking me to become honorary vice president. I signed an acceptance of the position but have not signed anything else in connection with the bank. If my name appears on any other papers, it is as a forgery."

Bank Wrecker

JOSEPH B. MARCINO.

Easy for Marcino to Grab Million

Christopher Columbus, from Genoa, discovered America. About 400 years later Joseph B. Marcino, barber, came over from Genoa and discovered how simple it was to take away Americans' money. Latest reports today rolled his operations up to a round million, with the books not closed.

A summary of results includes:

New York congressman reported lost in Marcino schemes	$200,000
Abe Goldman, Marcino's father-in-law, says he lost	250,000
Loot from First National Bank of Warren	213,000
Drawn from Mechanics and Merchants' Bank, Philadelphia	130,000
Drawn from treasury of Niagara Life Insurance Company of Buffalo	100,000
Perris, Cal., bank lost	40,000
	$933,000

In addition Marcino is known to have had operations with other banks in San Pedro, San Fernando, Beaumont, Glendora and Los Angeles, Cal., and Fairmount and Ottawa, Ill. The Ottawa, Ill., bank failed.

In contrast to this list, the Hoosier district around Muncie, Ind., stands out in bright and clever contrast as one place where Marcino was nipped. He lost $10,000.

Marcino Foiled in Grab at $1,500,000 Fund

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22.—How Joseph Marcino, the fugitive bank wrecker, was balked in his desperate effort to seize the $1,500,000 reserve fund of the Niagara Life Insurance Company, held on deposit in a Buffalo bank to protect the policyholders, was revealed by President E. R. Burke of the company today.

After acquiring control of the insurance company, Marcino lost no time in going after the huge reserve fund.

"When he failed to persuade me into revoking an order that the fund be undisturbed unless an order and notice were given the State Insurance department, Marcino tried everything short of blows to gain his point," President Burke said.

"There seems to be little doubt that if I had given in to him the $1,500,000 would have been lost to the policyholders."

Burke declared that the State Insurance department had been notified of Marcino's financial juggling. While the State officials asserted that they had been given the complaints prompt attention, it was pointed out that Marcino had obtained a draft of $160,000 from the insurance company treasury after they had taken control.

The records show that the draft was signed by Vice-President Lombardo, contrary to the department's orders.

Marcino realized $143,000 from his sale of the stolen stocks and bonds, according to O'Brien, Potter & Company, who gave him a check for that amount on February 7 last.

BOB SLED CARRIES WOMAN TO HOSPITAL

Williamstown, Feb. 23.—A bob sled became an emergency ambulance when Mrs. Archie Fournier, thirty-five years old, was rushed here from her home in the outskirts, and then transferred to North Adams Hospital in a taxi. Owing to the snow drifts, no other method of transportation was possible. She has given birth to a son after a Cæsarean operation.

FAVORS CHOICE OF STUDY BY SENIORS

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 23.—A plan whereby the upper classmen of Princeton University would, in the future, be left to their own independent study was the keynote of the annual alumni day address delivered by President John Grier Hibben here. This plan, he pointed out, would give as additional stimulus to intellectual curiosity and would enable the student to choose what branch of study in which he is particularly interested.

HOW MARCINO, EX-BARBER, WRECKED WARREN BANK

BURNING NOTICE
Lame Muscles Stiff Joints
MINARD'S FOR PAIN LINIMENT

PLOT WAS EASILY WORKED

Got Control, Put His Man in Charge, and Then Seized Valuables

Latest details today served to emphasize the bald simplicity of the plot through which the First National Bank of Warren was looted.

The Marcino method, in brief, was:

Buy working control—put a man in—clean the place out.

That is how an immigrant barber, now become financier, turned the trick in Warren as he had in other cities.

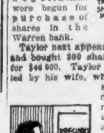
Joseph B Marcino sent Frank L. Taylor, his "dummy," on to Boston, where negotiations were begun for purchase of shares in the Warren bank.

Taylor next appeared in Worcester and bought 800 shares of the bank for $44,800. Taylor accompanied by his wife, who had attended school in Worcester and who renewed social acquaintances there.

TAYLOR BOUGHT 800 SHARES OF WE BANK WITH MARCINO MONEY

With them, also, was a man whom Taylor introduced as his backer, Edward J. Goldman of Chicago.

This Edward J. Goldman, it develops now, was Marcino himself, the master mind of the entire bank-wrecking scheme.



MARCINO PUT TAYLOR IN AS PRESIDENT OF "BIG BANK"

As soon as the 800 shares of stock were purchased Marcino had working control of the Warren institution. The next step was to put Taylor in as president and get rid of Sidney D. Gilligan, the former cashier.

Taylor's idea, it is said, was to have another man working with him inside the bank.

But Marcino, who seems to have a thrifty streak in his makeup, objected to paying two men $40 a week. So a compromise was made that Taylor should have $50 a week for being president.

The next link in the wrecking chain was the renting of a safe deposit box in the bank to Marcino.

MARCINO RENTED SAFE DEPOSIT BY ASSUMING FAKED BOND DESCRIPTION

On February 5 bank examiners pronounced the condition of the bank satisfactory. The new bank regime was now well established.

When Marcino, posing as Edward J. Goldman, rented a safe deposit box in the bank, he was given one immediately adjoining the box in which the bank's negotiable bonds were kept. This box was assigned to Marcino by Taylor.

MARCINO OPENS BANK'S BOX BY MEANS OF KEYS BY TAYLOR, PRESIDENT

On February 6—the very day after the bank examiners completed their inspection of the bank's books and resources—the trap was sprung.

Marcino walked in. He went to Taylor and asked for the key to his deposit box. Taylor gave him a key.

But this was not the key to the Marcino box but to the bank's bond deposit box, the treasure chest of the institution.

"Goldman" went to the bank's box, cleaned out the contents and took the next train back to Worcester and thence to Buffalo.

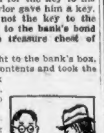
This was on February 7. On that same day Marcino received a check for $143,000 and the loss of the bonds had not then been "discovered" by Taylor.



MARCINO SELLS BONDS IN BUFFALO THROUGH BROKERAGE

Nashua Loses Character

Nashua, N. H., Feb. 23.—John Cobb, an umbrella mender and Civil War veteran, died at the police station after he was found unconscious at No. 161 West Hollis street. He was a picturesque local character.

Marcino's Career as Bank Wrecker Began at Age of 19

Chicago, Feb. 23.—The career of Joseph Marcino, or Baiati, one-time barber at the Lombard Hotel, is a breath-taking story of financial adventuring.

The man is twenty-eight years old. Since the age of nineteen, when he abandoned barbering, he has wrecked more than a dozen insurance-banking institutions, has appropriated to his own use something like a million dollars of other people's money, has acquired the intimacy of many of the nation's most reputable business and financial leaders and has won personal recognition and recommendation from King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

Marcino had a way about him. His friends and relatives—most of whom have suffered financial losses because of his willingness to "let them in" with him on money making ventures—agree that his personality was irresistible.

He was born in Milan, Italy. His father, Frank Baiati, brought him and his three sisters to Chicago when Joseph was a child. The boy started barbering at the Lombard Hotel at the age of sixteen.

GENIUS AS BARBER.

Some of Marcino's customers dealt in insurance, stocks and banking enterprises. The boy listened to their chatter and made up his mind he was wasting his talents selling shaves and haircuts.

In 1914 he obtained a job with the Globe Life Insurance Company. He did well, especially in the Italian section.

While Marcino did well as an insurance salesman, he was irked by the thought that the company's earnings on his sales were larger than his own commission.

So he determined to be not only the salesman, but also the company. He organized the Public Life Insurance Company. Of course, he made money. It was as easy to sell many Italians insurance in his own concern as in any old-line organization.

And, of course, his own company went out of business.

Baiati, while operating in the insurance field, had got an occasional glimpse behind the scenes in banking houses. Without investing anything more than his personality and some well sounding talk, he became vice-president of the Atlas Exchange Bank, No. 612 South Halsted street.

A banker at last!

But not for long. State Bank Examiner Harkins made an investigation and the bank was closed.

But Baiati's rubber-like enthusiasm was not dented. In a few weeks he offered the investing public a pair of new enterprises—the Roma Investment Company and the Commonwealth Life Insurance Company.

It was at this period that he met the American financial genius, John W. Worthington, who was sentenced recently in Chicago to two years in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Marcino visited the offices of a big insurance company. He wished to purchase insurance for himself. But he wished to insure himself only after he had sold to this company enough stock in his Roma and his Commonwealth concerns to take care of all premium obligations for life.

BECOMES A "BLACKIE" DAW.

The proposition was so bizarre that it actually won some consideration from the insurance company's Chicago manager. He decided, however, that his company could not undertake the writing of such a policy but suggested that Marcino call upon John W. Worthington, who at that time was believed to be a reputable dealer in securities.

Worthington met Marcino and there developed at once a mutual appreciation of talents. They joined forces in a deal. They went to Cedar Point, Ill., and took over control of the Farmers and Miners Bank.

The bank failed in 1919.

Marcino became to Worthington what "Blackie" Daw was to Rufus Wallingford. Soon after the pair began to finger the deposits of the Cedar Point bank, the suave Marcino visited in turn Ottawa, La Salle and Toluca, all small Illinois towns.

JUMPS HIS BONDS.

In Ottawa and La Salle they took over banks already organized and, eventually wrecked them. In Toluca, however they organized a bank, Marcino first having won the confidence—and a $1,000 investment—of a local Catholic priest.

In connection with these Illinois operations Marcino was indicted. He obtained bonds and jumped them. Later, the bonds were found to have been faulty and no forfeiture of property could be obtained. Months afterwards Marcino and Worthington made reimbursements to many of those who had lost money in banks. It is the present theory of detectives that return of part of the looted money was made by way of establishing confidence so that larger investment opportunities might be offered the small town folks.

FLEES TO MEXICO.

It was necessary for Marcino to leave Illinois for a time. He appeared in California, took over a bank in Perris, looted it of $40,000 and disappeared. There he used the name of Joseph Moffers.

The father-in-law, Goldman, learned, however, that things were far from right. He visited Perris and made good a large part of the shortage Joseph had caused.

From Mexico city Baiata went to Italy. He made immediate connections with high army officers there and obtained a commission to buy war munitions and other supplies in South America and ship them to Italy by camouflaged route through Mexico. After he had accomplished this mission he returned to Italy, where King Victor Emmanuel, delighted with his work, bestowed upon him one of the highest honors of the kingdom and wrote him a personal letter of recommendation.

Equipped with this letter, Baiata went to New York. He visited Buffalo and there obtained control of the Niagara Insurance company and of the Bison Holding Company.

With stocks and securities of these organizations he bought, although not in his own name, control of the Warren Bank.

He wrecked them all.

Barber Marcino Was Known as "Banker and Trimmer"

When Joseph B. Marcino, under the alias of Biatie, emigrated from Genoa a dozen years ago, and landed a job in a barber shop in South Halsted street, Chicago, he chatted with his customers about money and ways to make it.

As he shaved or clipped hair he dwelt on financial schemes. Ere long he was popularly known as the "banker and trimmer." The second part of that double name is now recalled with force.

DEPOSITORS OF WARREN BANK FEAR RUIN

Warren, Feb. 23.—Several hundred depositors of the First National Bank of this town believe they face ruin today as the result of the looting of the institution by Joseph Marcino through Frank L. Taylor, its president.

The depositors are largely Polish and French workers, but include many farmers. Mortgages are due in many instances. The industries of the town, however, kept only a small amount of their funds in the bank.

Steps have already been taken in an attempt to recover the $213,000 in stocks and bonds which were disposed of by Marcino to O'Brien, Potter & Co. of Buffalo. Attorney Declan Corcoran of Boston is expected to leave today for Buffalo to institute legal proceedings for the bank.

Officials of the bank, which will be closed for several weeks, declare that the depositors will not suffer and that the stockholders will meet the losses.

While Attorney Corcoran believes that the Buffalo stockbrokers acquired the stolen stocks and bonds in an irregular manner, the latter are confident that they are not liable in the matter inasmuch as they claim that the securities were acquired in the ordinary way and without any knowledge or suspicion that they were stolen.

Taylor Will Clear Himself, Says Wife

Worcester, Feb. 23.—Expressing pleasure at the capture of her husband, Frank L. Taylor, bank president accused of looting the First National Bank of Warren, Mrs. Taylor today denied that she is the daughter of Abe Goldman of Chicago, the father-in-law of Joseph Marcino, the master bank-wrecker.

"My name was not Goldman," she declared. "It was Haworth before my marriage. I was no relation to Goldman or to Marcino. I have met Marcino, but I cannot discuss that.

"I am so glad they have found my husband. It is such a relief. I have perfect faith in him. I am anxiously waiting for him. I know he will help the authorities and will clear himself of all guilt."

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER
Take Jad Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts
Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness and bladder irritation.
The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.
Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine the your kidneys at least twice a year.

DEMAND GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF DOPE SUPPLY

COUNTRY AROUSED BY EVIL

Congress Learns of Tremendous Extent of Menace to Nation

"The underworld is a kind of super-city which includes all cities, a super-slum of each, living always without the law and according to its own convention of life by the wits. Vice is its single recreation. Dope is the core of its vice.

"Crime is the bed-rock of the underworld and dope is the core of crime. The underworld is the incubator of the dope traffic. The dope peddler is ex-officio a member of the underworld."

By WINIFRED BLACK
Copyright, 1923, By Cosmopolitan News Service

Dope for sale. Not in the alleys, not in the dives, not in the furtive haunts of the pitiful wrecks of the underworld—but in the clean, honest open.

Dope, imported from the East, manufactured and sold by the government of the United States.

And not one grain of any kind of narcotics exported, imported, manufactured or sold anywhere in the United States, anynow, any time, by anyone, for any purpose whatsoever—except by the United States of America.

And every grain from the United States government imports, exports, manufactures and sells to be used exclusively for legitimate medical purposes.

Dope—made by Uncle Sam as stamps are made.

Dope—"pulled and stamped" as the currency of the United States government is "pulled and stamped."

Dope—that is a menace and a curse and a disease and a blessing.

That's the program—what do you think of it?

Just a little over four short weeks ago the people of this country began to awaken to the trafficker of dope.

COUNTRY AROUSED.

And in that four weeks and a little over the country has roused and spoken.

From Maine to California and from Alaska to the very wharves and waterfront of New Orleans the people are beginning to understand.

Congress has taken the matter up and what we have learned by actual sworn testimony before that Congressional investigating committee is enough to stir the blood of the coldest and most sluggish human being.

The courts, the police departments, teachers, preachers, the state and the city gardens of the great penitentiaries, one after another, from coast to coast are telling us the same terrible story and it is a story that has a meaning in it for every single real man and woman in America.

DANGER TO CIVILIZATION.

Dope used to hide in the underworld. It has begun to sniff boldly under our very eyes and one scandal after another has made us begin to realize the terrible danger that is striking at the roots of our very civilization.

Society women, graduate nurses, school teachers, clerks in stores, actors and actresses, lawyers, doctors, school children, yes, sometimes even babies in their mother's arms, were being drawn into the net.

One scandal after another has appeared in the public press.

What is the [illegible] at last?

Any big dealer will buy a good commission to anyone who will get him new customers—why not?

The habit spreads like any loathesome plague. One high school boy in one little city or small town has been known to bring in fifty others in less than six months.

In Chicago the school teachers have formed a society for the control of the dope habit among their pupils.

In North Dakota the other day in a little country school—the teacher sent home four children, all of them under 16 and every one of them stupid with morphine.

Isn't it about time that somebody woke up somewhere and did something definite about this?

Wally Reid's Wife Praises Elks for Fighting Dope

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Dorothy Davenport, wife of Wallace Reid, motion picture star who died recently from the ravages of dope, today praised the work of the Elks in their fight against narcotics. She sent a telegram to Exalted Ruler William J. Sinek, in which she promised her full assistance. The telegram said:

"Knew of your interest in campaign against drug traffic, a movement to which I intend to give greatest effort with all force of my being. Of all groups now interested in suppression of this menace the support of Elks, I believe, means most to the nation. I know it means more to me and mine as Wallace was an Elk.

"I will welcome any suggestions or support you and other leaders will give to the good people who are making sacrifices toward this crusade."

PROBE FIRE IN MOTOR OF BOSTON EXPRESS

New York, Feb. 23.—Investigation of a fire in the motor of the Boston express trains at Woodlawn Junction, which held up traffic on the New Haven Railroad an hour, was launched today by the Transit Commission. No one was injured. After the fire the commission declared the blaze in the insulation of the motor was due to a short circuit from "unknown causes."

cate, and died loudly praised by the missionaries. He goes to Boston, at noon. But as an African king, he had a dull time.

G[illegible] WASHINGTON, [illegible] of his day, would have been respectfully forgotten for another year, except that attention has been called to his schedule of living costs. He supported his family, including eighteen servants, several secretaries and sixteen horses, on about $35,000 a year. He couldn't do that now. His butcher bill [illegible] served hundred [illegible] for three months; his fuel vegetables not quite three hundred, and—this will shock the good—in three months his beer $170, French red wine $105, porter $45. He spent only five shillings for liquors—wise father of his country. If everybody had done the same ever since, there would be no drink problem in the United States.

OIL IN the Philippines: California's branch of the Standard Oil is at work there. If that oil develops in paying quantities, you'll see tender interest in the Philippines increase rapidly—United States interest and Japanese interest. A little oil makes a great difference in international relations. Oil in the Philippines would mean, probably, an end to talk of Philippine independence for some time to come. An excellent thing for the Filipinos, although many of them don't know it.

NO. END TANK FOR GASOLINE PROTESTED

The lives of 30,000 North End residents will be endangered by the erection of a gasoline filling station at Commercial and Prince streets, within 150 yards of the massive gas tank of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, according to Representative Joseph Langone.

He has introduced an order in the House of Representatives calling on the State fire officials to make an investigation and report not later than March 15. A hearing on the order is scheduled before a legislative committee early next week.

The gasoline filling station to which Representative Langone objects is in process of construction.

"The Boston Gas Company controls the land on which the new gasoline station is being constructed," said Representative Langone today. "In my opinion the State fire officials should not permit the storage of gasoline at that point. This new filling station is only 150 yards from the big gas tank of the Boston Gas Company on Prince street and if the gasoline ever exploded I believe the huge gas tank would also explode. If that happened many people would be killed as the gas tank is located in one of the most thickly settled tenement districts of Boston.

"Census figures show that 30,000 people live in the North End peninsula within half a mile of the big gas tank. These people have in mind the recent gas tank explosion at Springfield and they also remember the molasses tank explosion in the North End a few years ago."

TUT'S TREASURES STAY IN EGYPT

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 23 (By International News Service).—Practically all the treasures found in the 3,000-year-old tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the Valley of the Kings, will remain in Egypt, it was understood today.

Egyptian officials are insisting that the mummy remain in the tomb where it was found and it is likely that this will be the case.

Soreness Stops Quickly, then the Corn Shrivels and Lifts Off —Try It and See.

Here is the real "Corn Killer" at last. Say good-bye to your old corn salve and plasters, for that Pet Corn of yours is sure to be a "Goner" if it ever feels the Magic touch of Ice-Mint. This is a new discovery made from a Japanese product and it is certainly a wonder the way it ends corn misery. From the very second that Ice-Mint touches that sore, tender corn your poor, tired, aching feet will feel so cool, easy and comfortable that you will just sigh with relief. Think of it; only a little touch of that cooling, soothing Ice-Mint and real foot joy is yours. No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying it or afterwards and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened callouses just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! Just ask in any Drug Store for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor, suffering, tired feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better, or nothing "just as good."

"RUM PIRATE" MADE GANG DO HIS BIDDING

Further details of the nerve and cunning of "Big Ed" Furey, under arrest for wholesale liquor robberies along the North Shore, and his dapper blond pal, the "Count," for whom the police net is spread, are given in the second instalment of Joseph Gluck's confession, exclusively published in the Boston American today.

Gluck, in the parlance of the underworld, tells how Furey and the "Count" posed as plain clothes "dicks" from New York headquarters, how they cowed and influenced the gang that stole $5,000,000 bonds from Wall street, and how the plot to steal negotiable securities on a colossal scale was hatched in a saloon in Montreal.

BLUFF GLUCK.

In the instalment published yesterday, Gluck said he and Jack Adler, wayward son of Jacob Adler, the actor, were in the store of the latter's father in Mount Vernon, N. Y., on New Year's eve, 1919, when Furey and the "Count" came in and the "Count" blustered "Hello, Joey, old boy! We have got you right this time!"

"It seemed funny. They went through the park, too. And Adler said—oh no; when we were in the store, Furey looked at Adler and he said: "Your name is Adler, isn't it?" Adler says "No." He said: "You have been up before, haven't you?" Adler says "No." He takes off his hat and looks at him good, and he said: "You have been up before," and grabbed him along; he said: "Come on along with us."

"WAS ALL PHONEY."

Q.—That was all phoney wasn't it? A.—Yes that was all phoney. They hired a cab. And in the cab Adler was talking to me. He said: "I can't go there. Because they want me down there." The Count started to talk to me and told me about the different hotels I have been at, which Adler, no doubt, told him I suppose.

Q.—Where did he find that out? A.—I don't know; from friends up there I suppose.

Q.—To whom you had been talking. A.—Yes sir. And he mentioned Hoboken to me, and I kind of thought he knew a lot when he mentioned Hoboken. And he mentioned stocks and securities being stolen down in Wall Street and everything else. And Adler says: "Can I speak to this friend here for a while?" Adler said that to the Count.

BRIDE IS SUGGESTED.

"The Count said: 'Sure, no objection.' And Adler was telling me he was afraid to go down to the District Attorney. He said he was out on bail. I said: 'For what?' He said: 'I can't tell you just now, but they will beat the devil out of me if I go down there,' and he suggested that we do business with the detectives. Adler was the one that suggested that.

"I said: 'What for? I don't know nothing.' I just denied everything. I said I was willing to go down there. And he said: 'We will stop off at some place and talk to them.' I said: 'All right, if you want to.' And we hopped off in 110th street and St. Nicholas avenue, at a restaurant.

"The "Count" said he would call in the district attorney. He went to a booth and made as if he called up somebody. I don't think he did. He came out and said: 'I guess we'll have to be going.' Adler said: 'Wait a minute. We can get around this here thing. Now we can do business with these fellows; they seem to be all right.' I said all right. I'll call up my father. He said: 'Sure, why not?' I called up my father and he started crying on the phone; he was scared stiff. He didn't know what happened. And that broke me down a lot, too; I didn't care what I did then. I said, well, listen, I have got $2,000 in the bank. I will let you have that."

Q.—What else did you offer him? A.—The car.

Q.—What car? A.—The Stutz and the ring.

Q.—That car you had got out of the proceeds of stolen bonds? A.—Yes, the car I had got out of the proceeds of these bonds.

Q.—And the ring you had gotten out of the proceeds of the stolen bonds? A.—No.

Q.—Where did you get the ring? A.—I will tell you about that later.

Continued Tomorrow.

WITHDRAWS HER SUIT FOR SEPARATION

BREWSTER PAYS WIFE $50,000; SUIT DROPPED

New York, Feb. 23.—Mrs. Eleanor V. V. Brewster will discontinue her suit for separation from Eugene V. Brewster, former lawyer and lecturer, now millionaire owner of moving picture magazines, it was announced today by Charles F. Murphy, her attorney.

The prime reason for the withdrawal, it was said, is a desire to avoid publicity. It was pointed out that this does not in any way mean the Brewsters have been reconciled. They will live apart.

Mrs. Brewster has been given "substantial guarantees" by her husband. Mr. Murphy announced, as well as $50,000 in real estate. She will continue to have custody of the three-year-old son, Virgil.

KILL LAST HOPE FOR ACTION ON CAPE COD BILL

Washington, Feb. 23.—Although Republican leaders had ended the filibuster started in the House Wednesday by announcing they would not press at this time the bill proposing government purchase of the Cape Cod Canal, the legislative jam in that body was intensified today by the time consumed in the filibuster.

The program was further complicated by prospect of delay in securing action on the Allen Property Bill, the unfinished business before the House.

A number of representatives were prepared to offer amendments authorizing the return of all property seized during the war from enemy aliens instead of only the smaller trusts, as now proposed.

Republican leaders gave no indication when the Cape Cod Canal Bill would again be brought up and Chairman Winslow of the Interstate Commerce Committee, in charge of the measure, declared the party managers had given him "no assurance of consideration of the bill at this session of Congress."

TWO CONTINENTS TO HEAR RADIO CONCERT

New York, Feb. 23.—For the first time in history, two continents are to hear a concert simultaneously tonight via the radiofone. Edith Bennett at midnight will project songs in Italian, French and English from the "WOR" broadcasting station, Newark, and is expected to be heard by early risers in London, Paris, Rome, Milan and other European centers. Dr. Lee De Forrest, whose audion made the experiment possible, said an international broadcasting arrangement may result from tonight's trial.

"Like Mother Used to Make!"

We sympathize with those modern women who are reminded of the cooking genius of dear old mothers and grandmothers. Flavor in cooked food is dependent upon the flavor that exists in food before it is cooked!

For example, you can't get old-fashioned tenderness and rich aromatic flavor even in simple bacon and eggs—if the bacon is little better than salt pork.

But use Ferris Bacon—fresh cured by the half century famous Ferris method and fresh sliced so that none of the flavor has escaped, and you get a dish that fairly sings with delightful flavor.

SETTLED TO AVOID SCANDAL

Mrs. Furness Also Pivot of Wild Drinking Parties Abroad, Is Charge

By Universal Service.
Special Cable Dispatch.

London, Feb. 23.—The name of Maurice, the dancer, tangoed back and forth through the testimony given in the divorce trial of Tom Gummer Stephenson Furness and his wife, Elizabeth Fae Furness, the former declaring his wife was a drug addict and had been the pivot of many wild drinking parties and "high jinks" in Paris, Deauville and London.

Mrs. Furness filed suit for restoration of her conjugal rights. Her husband, opposing this action, also cross petitioned for a dissolution of the marriage on the ground that his wife had been guilty of misconduct with Maurice Mouvet, the Maurice of the dance world. The wife denied these charges. Maurice did not appear in person.

Dancer Maurice

TREATED FOR DRINK.

Sir Ernest Pollock, counsel for Furness, said the Furnesses were married in New York in July, 1919, which they lived in various of the fashionable sections of London until February, 1922.

At that time, he said, both Furness and his wife left their apartment for nursing homes, she for treatment for the drink and drug habits, he to recover from wounds inflicted by his wife during a domestic battle.

Pollock then brought in the name of Maurice, charging that Mrs. Furness had been intimate with the dancer before her marriage to Furness, and that she constantly visited him in his apartment in the Picadilly Hotel in February, 1920, after she had left the hospital and while her husband still was suffering from the domestic scrimmage which sent him to take medical treatment.

LEFT BILL UNPAID

In July, 1920, Pollock said, Furness and his wife went to Deauville, and while they were there Maurice stopped at the same hotel. He said Maurice left the hotel without paying his bill, but that the matter was hushed up when Mrs. Furness paid it.

Describing a "dreadful scene" in the Furness flat on May 9, 1921, Sir Ernest accused Mrs. Furness of attacking her husband with a nail file and a safety razor, gashing his arms and neck until she was torn from him by servants and held down until she was calmed.

Furness, on the stand, corroborated his counsel's story and accused his wife of taking part in many "drinking bouts." He also said she ran away to Paris with Maurice. He said that once, when he protested against her conduct, Mrs. Furness blacked his eye with her fist.

Program of Thrills for Ellis Memorial Skating Carnival, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THERE'S small chance indeed of the twelfth annual Ellis Memorial Skating Carnival on Tuesday evening being a "frost."

Miss Marion Fenno and her capable committees have concocted a program full of frills and thrills. There will be a valentine drill, speed races, an Italian street scene, a snappy hockey game between the Radcliffe and Junior League teams, fancy skating by Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard and Nat Niles, Willie Frick with some of his breath-taking stunts, as well as the professionals, Burke and Bliss. There will also be waltzing and ten-step competitions.

Of those who have helped Miss Fenno on the carnival committee are Mrs. T. Russell Sullivan, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, Jr., Mrs. J. Harleston Parker, Mrs. Bertram W. Greene, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Mrs. Richard Olney, Mrs. Stephen W. Sleeper and William deFord Beal.

MRS. RUSSELL G. FESSENDEN and Miss Elizabeth Dalton, who are of the Boston colony at Hot Springs, made the drive over to Fassifern Farm for luncheon the other day.

WHEN Miss Catherine Adams becomes the bride of young Henry Sturgis Morgan—the event is scheduled for next June, I believe—the smartest of the wedding "fans" will be on hand for the ceremonial.

Miss Adams, who's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams of Commonwealth avenue, is rather petite, and of medium coloring. The other day, when I saw her, she wore a becoming street costume of all-gray, trimmed with bands of squirrel fur. She's a member of the Vincent Club and was presented some two or three years ago. Her fiance, who completes his course at Harvard this year, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan (Jane Grew) of New York. Mrs. Morgan, as everyone knows, is a member of the Boston family of Grews, while the Morgans' older son, Junius Spencer Morgan, Jr., followed in his father's footsteps by marrying Miss Louise Converse, daughter of the Frederick S. Converses of Boston.

MRS. CAMERON McRAE WINSLOW of Bay State road, and two of her daughters, the Misses Natalie and Theodora Winslow, have arrived at Hot Springs, where they are stopping at The Homestead. They plan to return North in a fortnight's time, I believe. Miss Theodora was one of the prominent debutantes of the season, being elected to membership in the Junior League.

The Winslows spend the Summers at Newport, where the entire family are among the keenest tennis players on the Casino courts.

PRINCESS MICHAEL CANTACUZENE, JR. (Clarissa Curtis) went down to Washington from New York for the fete held at the capital the other day in aid of the Russian Refugee Relief Fund. During her stay there she was the guest of her parents-in-law, Prince and Princess Cantacuzene, who were of the leading spirits for the fete. Princess Michael, Jr., is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis of Boston.

JOHN MITCHELL has joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mitchell, at the latter's Winter home in Palm Beach. The Mitchells have a place on the North Shore at Manchester-by-the-Sea, known as "Clandyne."

WASHINGTON GOES ON HOLIDAY BUST

George Washington observed the holiday named in his honor by going on a bust. But this Washington was the bust which has been standing on a pedestal in the Vorenberg store on Washington street. It fell and smashed the heavy glass window. Police hastily gathered, fearing an attempt to rob the store was being made.

DOG RETURNS HOME, WALKING 700 MILES

Denver, Feb. 23.—Walking and limping 700 miles from St. Joseph, Mo., to Denver, an Airedale dog appeared at the home of Frank Farrow, its former owner, after three weeks' absence. Farrow had shipped the dog to a kennel in the Missouri city when it became unmanageable. He intended to pay its board for the rest of its life, but the dog refused to stay away.

ROCKEFELLER'S DAUGHTER WAS 'TUT'S WIFE'

Chicago, Feb. 22.—The Chicago Herald and Examiner in its account of a fashionable dinner party held recently on the North Side, quotes Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, former wife of Harold F. McCormick, the Harvester magnate, as saying she was the first wife of His Majesty, Tutankhamen, first of the Pharaohs.

When the conversation of the dinner guests reverted to a discussion of the opening of King Tutankhamen's tomb, Mrs. McCormick was quoted as saying:

"I married King Tutankhamen when I was only sixteen years old —I was his first wife. Only the other day while glancing through an illustrated paper I saw a picture of a chair recovered from the King's chamber. Like a flash I recognized that chair. I had sat in it many times.

"I can recall my past life as Queen of Egypt. Two years after my marriage to the King, I passed out into the great beyond. It was a lock of my successor's hair they found in the tomb."

Mrs. McCormick's interest in reincarnation, astrology and the mystic is of many years' standing.

Claims Queenly Past

MRS. E. R. McCORMICK.

Mrs. McCormick is reported as telling her friends that she was the first wife of the Pharaoh Tutankhamen, and remembers sitting in one of the chairs taken from the tomb. She is known to be interested in reincarnation.

MEDFORD DEATH MYSTERY IS SOLVED

"Natural causes" was the report of the medical examiner in the investigation of the death of John Daley of No. 320 Salem street, Medford.

Coroner John Daley, Jr., who has been held pending the result of the autopsy, was released. Young Daley told police that he had slept in the same bed with the body for two days. He could give no reason why he failed to call a physician or notify the police. The young man was released recently from Concord Reformatory.

Daley was found dead in bed by another son, Morris, of Lawrence, who reported to the police.

3,000 WOMEN SHOUT IN VAIN FOR VALENTINO

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Suffering from being crushed by a mob of women who besieged him at his visit to the stockyards, Rodolph Valentino kept to his room in the Blackstone Hotel while 3,000 women waited in vain at the Briggs House, Physicians, it was said, forbade Rodolph to attend a meeting scheduled for the Briggs House, with Judge Barass, mayoralty candidate, as host.

When the actor failed to show up, the women raised an angry shout. They clamored, struggled, yes, fought, for several hours in a battle for vantage points to get a peak or a pack at the Sheik. Judge Barass, through a publicity man, tried to square himself with the girls, who shouted their dismay.

4 HURT, 2 DYING IN SUSPICIOUS NEW YORK FIRE

New York, Feb. 23.—Two persons are dying and four others received injuries today in a three-alarm fire of suspicious origin that swept with lightning like speed through a five-story tenement at No. 102 Avenue C, near Seventh street.

The fire was one of four suspicious blazes which started within fifteen minutes and inside of a few blocks in the heart of the lower East Side tenement district.

The seriously injured are Mrs. Fannie Berger, eighty, and an unidentified man, thought to be her husband. Mrs. Berger is at Bellevue Hospital with broken arms and legs and a fractured skull. No hope is held for her recovery.

These two persons jumped to the street from the third-story window

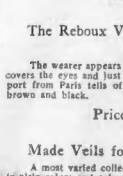
—concerning Veils



It is said that in Paris no woman considers herself smart without a veil trailing somewhere about her person.

VEILS are becoming to practically every woman because of a certain softening and flattering effect, whether they are worn over the face are flying off behind.

The new Veils which we are showing this season are more alluring than ever before and offer many possibilities for individuality.

Drape Veils in Paisley and Persian effects—

The borders serve as very striking trimming, while the ends drape over the hat and fall to the shoulders and some almost to the waistline. A varied showing of beautiful colors and combinations.

Priced 1.50 to 5.00

The Reboux Veil gives a little touch of mystery—

The wearer appears to hide behind this little veil because it covers the eyes and just reaches the tip of the nose. Every report from Paris tells of its increasing popularity. Colors are brown and black.

WOMAN FREED IN CAPITAL RUM RAID

Washington, Feb. 23.—A court freed Mrs. Elizabeth J. Hoffman arrest was the latest sensation of official Washington, on charges of selling and illegal possession of liquor. When her apartment was raided, a man who said he was minister of a Central American republic, was found there. Liquor is alleged to have been possessed by her was furnished by a legation, it was rumored.

"I NEVER HAD A CHANCE," SOBS BRIDE OF SIX

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 23.—With a record of having married and deceived six men, Florence Mae Dibble, twenty-eight, of Binghamton, held on a bigamy charge, cried today, between sobs, that she "never had a chance."

Her grandmother forced her into marriage when she was fourteen years old, and that ended her dreams, she said.

But agents of the Department of Justice told the court it was not she who lacked the chance; they said it was her six husbands.

The Binghamton girl is alleged to have married her rapidly successive husbands, all of whom were soldiers, for the purpose of obtaining their warrisk insurance.

SOME MARRIAGE RECORD.

August, 1918 — Married Isaac Page at Elmira.

January, 1919—Married William Schrader at Binghamton.

Dec. 16, 1919—Married Cornelius Regan at Binghamton.

Nov. 30, 1920—Married Samuel E. Bruce at Milwaukee.

In the expectation that Florence Mae might return to Binghamton, which is said to be her original home, Federal agents came here to investigate, and on February 22, 1922, swore out a warrant for her arrest before United States Commissioner Robert S. Wickham.

The warrant and a copy of the complaint were turned over to Deputy United States Marshal John F Shay, but Florence Mae didn't come back.

Federal agents located her in Washington after, it is said, they found a friend living in Binghamton with whom she had been corresponding.

OPERATED NOVEL GAME.

Police court records here show that she was arrested in court in Binghamton August 7, 1918, charged by Paul H. Snapp with bigamy. She pleaded not guilty in Supreme Court.

It was brought out in court she was married to Isaac Page of Elmira, in August, 1918, and that she married Schrader without getting a divorce from Page. This nullified her marriage to Schrader.

Meanwhile, her attorney brought out, Page died, and then she married Snapp. Inasmuch as her first husband was dead when she married Snapp, her marriage to Schrader was void. She was discharged by the court and the complaint against her was dismissed.

Department of Justice agents declared today, "the girl got away with one of the cleverest games we've ever run across."

Systematically arranging to meet soldiers at the camps, where she was employed as a laundress, they assert, Miss Dibble married first one man, then another, as soon as the predecessor of the latest husband had been transferred to a distance.

He was discharged later in Yorkville Court in New York. Dr. Daniel J. Daley of New York was the complainant. He told the judge that he was awakened from sleep by a hand fumbling through his berth. He said he saw Allen, who occupied a berth across the car.

The doctor searched his pockets, he declared, and found that $320 was missing. He cried that he had been robbed and the passengers were awakened. The doctor accused Allen, who protested his innocence. Allen told the court that he had made several trips to the water cooler in the night and might have bumped against the doctor's berth.

FLEET ELUDES ITS ENEMY IN SHAM BATTLE

Aboard U. S. S. California, Off Central America, Feb. 23 (By the Associated Press).—The battle fleet today was safely tucked away in its objective anchorage following extensive combined joint manoeuvres, which were said by Admiral Eberle, who commanded the fleet from the bridge of the flagship California, to have been successful beyond his fondest hopes.

The fleet manoeuvred so successfully that it eluded the "opposing" forces, which were unable to discover the battle craft until too late to attack. Led by its destroyers and mine force, the fleet at all times was operating under severe war conditions.

Once an opposing submarine appeared, but after many reports of being sighted and attacked by destroyers, it was adjudged, it would have been destroyed if actual warfare existed. Later, the submarine came to the surface ahead of the California, which barely missed ramming the undersea craft.

A seaplane was launched from a fence of submarines and mines, battleship catapult at sea to scout out the enemy and detect the presence

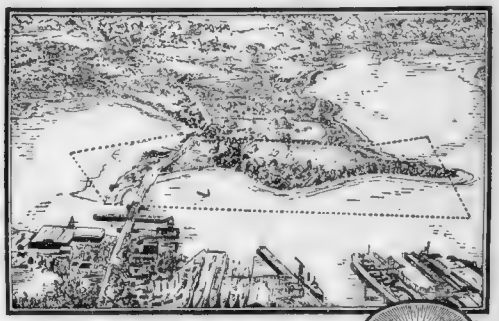
A COMPLETE LINE OF BRUNSWICK PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS



Airplane view of 60-acre site at Weymouth for new Boston Edison generating station, with capacity of 400 000 H P and 300,000 ton coal storage

The Friendly Glow

A step today, and—you can meet tomorrow

IT used to be New Downer's Landing — a picnic grove, with an amusement park, and rowboats for hire to idle about the Fore River It's just across Quincy Point Bridge, and just opposite the shipyards, on the main shore road to the Cape.

We have bought 60 acres there, and when winter is out of the ground there will be activity The plans are drawn, the contracts awarded, and you will see the building of a station there to generate 400,000 horsepower of electricity

It will rank with the largest generating stations in the United States, with enough capacity to supply the Greater Boston district with twice the electricity it used on December 21 1922, the biggest day in its history

It will have storage space for 300 000 tons of coal — enough to make electricity for Greater Boston for 170 days like last December 21st.

And it is built by simple arithmetic!

How do we dare build so far beyond the maximum of present requirement? By simple arithmetic. You aren't likely to come to us today for twice the electricity that is now helping you to live and work more easily and more effectively; even if you do it isn't likely that the two million others in Greater Boston will have the same needs at the same moment Aren't we guessing? No, we're figuring!

For example: In December of 1921 you did so many things with electricity in home and shop and office and factory, and in going to and fro, that you used 38,000 000 kilowatt hours of electricity

One year later, in December, 1922 you used over fifty million kilowatt hours in the business of making Greater Boston greater—an increase of 32 per cent over the previous December, and the first time you ever needed more than 50,000,000.

A one-third increase in one year! If that rate of growth were to go on, in less than three years Greater Boston would use twice the quantity of today It won't be quite as fast as that for Greater Boston is no boom town But it is our business to know exactly what your requirement will be and to meet it even before you know your needs yourself.

Arithmetic plus Faith

Every calculation we make looks forward so Greater Boston can step forward. Every record we have shows it has stepped forward. Our simple arithmetic is based on the relentless advance of Greater Boston in a common spirit that for nearly three centuries has made this city greater every year.

That sort of figuring is called Faith. Faith is one-way, and two-sided. We grow together.

TRAIL LEADS TO BOSTON IN BAD MONEY PLOT

New York, Feb. 23.—More than 500 persons involved in the international counterfeiting system laid bare by secret service agents are under arrest.

Clues captured in raids here Tuesday have sent Federal agents to Boston, Chicago and other large cities in an attempt to complete the roundup.

A separate investigation by the New York police who profess to know that counterfeiters now held are connected with several gang murders in the East Side, is underway. A number of queries, it was said, were committed in or near the cafe in Broome street of John di Dosa, who was arrested as one of the ring's largest wholesalers of spurious money.

Joseph A. Palma, chief of the special secret service squad on the case, declared that after an eight months' hunt in foreign countries, fifteen counterfeiters were caught in England, France, Egypt, Germany, Cuba, Austria and the Bahamas.

Bootleggers are alleged to have been users of large amounts of the bogus bills in doing business abroad. Some of the dies used in making spurious currency were smuggled in heads of cheese from Italy, investigators say.

GIRL SOUGHT AS KEY IN MURDER MYSTERY

MRS. E. REMINGTON AND SLAIN MATE
(Photo by International News Reel)

By LOUIS WEADOCK.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Los Angeles, Feb. 23. — Prohibition agents of the Federal government have taken a hand in the Earle Remington murder mystery.

While the Federal agents busied themselves with their inquiry into Remington's bootlegging activities most of the city detectives all concentrated their efforts upon a search for a girl who is thought to hold the key to the mystery of the murder. She is said to have visited a hotel with Remington a few hours before he was killed at the door of his home. So far she has eluded the police.

The appearance of the dry agents in the case followed a conference between their chief, S. H. Dolley, director of the Los Angeles prohibition enforcement bureau, and Detective Captain Home, at which several hundred letters, which the latter had seized among the effects of the murdered manufacturer, were turned over to the Federal authorities.

Contents of these letters corroborate Mrs. Remington's revelation that her husband was the head of a band of bootleggers.

Federal and city detectives were questioning as many as they could find of the 300 men whose names appear in the confiscated correspondence.

The Federal agents believe that Remington's auto was used by those bootleggers who killed three dry agents in a running fight near the Mexican border.

LODGERS FLEE EXPLOSION IN CAFE

Hundreds of lodgers fled to the street when a fire and a hot air explosion in a crowded restaurant at Nos. 455 and 457 Tremont street, South End, menaced the neighborhood.

Janet McIntosh

Mrs. Agnes Merrill was trapped in a smoke-filled hallway when she fainted as she rushed from her room. Tools Le Cass, a roomer, carried her to the street. When she recovered, she told firemen that $50, all she owned, was under her pillow in a second floor room above the burning restaurant.

Firemen recovered her money. Pauline Hottinger and Annie Beckerman of No. 461 Tremont street; Janet McIntosh of No. 459 Tremont street; Susie B. Perkins and Mrs. Jennie L. Perkins, of the same address, were all driven out by the flames.

Mrs. J. L. Perkins

Damage was estimated at $4,000. The report that a store of alcohol reposed in the cellar beneath the restaurant added to the excitement. This was unfounded. Peter Sinopoulos, owner of the restaurant, said the fire was caused by an overheated stove.

The hot air explosion occurred. It pushed a plate glass window from its fastening. The falling glass narrowly missed several firemen. More than one hundred patrons of the restaurant escaped without difficulty.

Miss Nesbit Discharged by Judge

EVELYN NESBIT.

By Universal Service.

Atlantic City, Feb. 23. Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, won her case when arraigned on the charge of having attacked a diner in the cafe of which she is part owner.

The case was dismissed when it was testified by Miss Nesbit that the charge was a "frame up" designed to break a contract which requires her to appear nightly at the cafe.

Remarking that the "case smelled bad," and wondering why the so-called "prominent Pittsburgh physician" whom Miss Nesbit was supposed to have struck did not appear the judge gave her back her $200 bail and permitted her to depart.

STOWAWAY LOVE GIRL DEPORTED

Young Finnish Woman Lured Here Spends 60 Days of Misery on Shipboard

Bertha Laine went through hell for nothing.

Unemotional, unromantic, matter of fact immigration officials, thumbing rules and regulations today, decided that she will have to be deported.

She can't speak English. She couldn't sense out of the words of Immigration Commissioner Johnson and his assistants. They talked about territorial jurdisdiction, the Mann Act, smuggling aliens and other unintelligible things at the special board of inquiry in the immigration office at East Boston.

But the gist of it is that Bertha must go back to Raumo, Finland where, in a cafe, she first met Alvares, a Portuguese.

MADE HER LOVE HIM.

Over the beer at Raumo Alvarez made Bertha love him. In many ports Alvares had met many women but none like this strapping Finn maiden. The badinage that other women took with a smile she accepted like gospel. Alvarez' ship the U. S. Shipping Board steamer Bellingham, milling in the ice of the harbor, ready to set sail for America the next day. Alvares told the nineteen-yearold girl what a grand land America is.

"The ship's practically surrounded by ice," he said. "We start tomorrow."

Bertha nodded.

There was a mile of ice between shore and the Bellingham. On Christmas eve this Finnish Elisa walked across the ice to the ship. Members of the crew had been let in on the secret and they lifted her aboard.

60 DAYS OF HELL.

The trip lasted sixty days. Bertha went down into the "glory 'ole" in the forecastle, and occupied a bunk with Alvarez. White men shun the foul gutter, which has terrors and dangers beyond description. The sixty days spent in the "glory 'ole" by Bertha were sixty days of unadulterated hell.

There were brutal fights between the motley crew in the forecastle, during which bottles flew and monkey-wrenches cracked heads. There were drunken brawls such as are fading from the memory of this generation.

Two months of fetid, foul air, polyglot curses, ceaseless grinding of the big engines—a ghastly honeymoon Bertha had with her coal-grimed sailor, who stoked the first. She didn't leave the "glory 'ole" during the entire trip.

LOST OVERBOARD.

Then a hurricane drove a notorious killer and ten fellow Portuguese whimpering in terror from the ship's hold, the girl was there alone. But she kept her head and stood fast. A succession of terrible gales beset the vessel's path.

In the storm of cyclonic force a seaman was lost overboard. The girl missed him from the forecastle and asked what had happened. They told her the truth. Still she was unafraid. She knew that as each terrible day passed the big ship was getting closer to America, the grand land Alvares had told her about.

Wednesday night Alvarez brought his sweetheart before Commander Henry Morgan. Captain Morgan looked Alvarez up in the ship's log to be cited later on a charge of smuggling an alien in.

The next day the ship docked in Boston and Bertha was turned over to the immigration authorities. There was the brief pleasure today with the girl looking forward to the time when she will be deported from the next outgoing ship bound for Finland. She was not even able to get a good look at the grand land which lured her across the mile of ice in Raumo Harbor.

HEIRLOOMS STOLEN FROM ACTRESS

MRS. A. C. PFEIFFER

Burglars ransacked the country home in Lexington of Dr. Albert C. Pfeiffer, Boston surgeon, of No. 413 Beacon street.

Valuable silver, heirlooms in the family of the doctor's wife, Mrs. Alexandra Carlisle Pfeiffer, were stolen. A revolver was also taken. Mrs. Pfeiffer, who nominated Calvin Coolidge for Vice-President of the United States at Chicago in 1920, is Alexandra Carlisle, the famous actress.

1 DEAD, 2 DYING IN BOSTON AUTO ACCIDENTS

Edward Gauthier, aged South End man, who was struck by an automobile while watching the three alarm fire at Nos. 126-132 Worcester street, South End, Wednesday, died at the City Hospital of his injuries. Gauthier had suffered a fractured skull and cuts and bruises. The automobile was operated by Harry Bescroft of No. 234 Pleasant street, Arlington. He was not held by the police. Gauthier was seventy-eight years old and lived at No. 25 Worcester street, South End.

Two others are dying at the hospital of injuries suffered when they were struck by automobiles. They are Aurora De Angelis, eight years old, of No. 4 Emerald street, South End, and Lawrence Kane, twenty one years old, of No. 23 East Highland street, Roxbury.

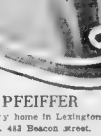
The De Angelis girl was struck by a taxi of the Armstrong Transfer Company at Berkeley and Tremont streets, South End. She suffered internal injuries, fractures of the shoulder, jaw and has numerous teeth.

Kane was struck by an automobile operated by Charles Myers of No. 2 Roach street, Dorchester, on Massachusetts avenue, Roxbury. He suffered concussion of the brain.

BOY BEATEN IN SCHOOL FACES LONG ILLNESS

Charged with assault on a twelve-year-old boy, Principal Archibald Caldwell of the Roby Grammar School, Hanover is being sued for $5,000 by the lad's father.

The suit was filed by Chester A. Goodnue of No. 34 Taylor street, Saugus. He alleges that his son, Chester Jr., was pummeled by being thrown across a hall and being knocked down by the principal's fist. This was punishment, Mr Goodnue asserts, accorded the boy for "whispering in line.



Chester Goodhue

As a result of the alleged assault, the plaintiff declares that his son has been under the daily treatment of Dr Frank Louges. The father is a Lynn manufacturer.

Dr Louges said today: "To punish a schoolboy because he breaks one of the petty rules of the school may be perfectly in keeping, but any man who pushes a boy in the manner young Goodnue was punished is not worthy even to be called a man. The Goodnue boy was in serious condition when I attended him after the alleged assault."

'HUSBAND' OF THREE ARRESTED

Has One "Wife" in England, One in New Bedford and One in New Jersey

New Bedford, Feb. 23.—The woman who was Jennie Flaherty of this city can now stop her long search for the man who deserted her.

Her husband, Arthur Ainscough, has been found, and is now in a cell at Edgewater, N.J.

This news, which was of great interest to Jennie Flaherty, will also interest Chief Constable Fey of Wigan, England, for in that city is another woman who has been waiting for word from Ainscough.

And right in Edgewater, where he is jailed, is Iva Davey, flaxen-haired, blue-eyed girl who has been missing from her home for seventeen months. Iva is home again, and she brought with her a five months old baby boy.

Like the other two women, little Iva fell a victim to Ainscough's habit of romancing, whereby he made of himself a figure of glamorous interest. He has been constable, engineer, sea captain, soldier of fortune all over the world.

Ainscough had become acquainted with the Daveys and was a frequent guest at their home. On the evening of September 29, 1921, Ainscough suggested to Ivy, "They've put new lights on the State road—let's take a walk." The girl slipped on a tam and a coat and went along.

She was never seen again by her parents until early this week, when she returned with her baby. In all the seventeen months that her mother had mourned her as dead the girl had been living with Ainscough. In a two-room shack near the waterfront at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. They were found there by Ivy's father, who had never given up the search.

Even when the father had sworn out a warrant against Ainscough, charging abduction, the girl would not believe there was anything against his record, it was only when she was confronted with indisputable evidence of his former marriages that she realized the predicament she was in and made the statement that she would never live with him again.

The parents of Ivy have taken her into their home without censure for her elopement. She is lovingly welcomed and her baby has been taken to the hearts of the family. It is likely the child will be formally adopted by the Daveys in order that it might be given a name.

Wilson's Sweeping Reply to Army of Challengers

Johnny Wilson is sweating blood under his well known middleweight championship crown and through his able manager, Marty Killilea, has delivered the following to the army of challengers who are hurling all kinds of offers in the direction of the Charlestown boy's abode:

Johnny Wilson

"I will take on the whole Shade family—Dave, George and Billy—the same night and in the same ring, and if that isn't enough they can throw in Bill Brennan for good measure—just for that $35,000 I am reading so much about in the papers these days.

"I will also give Harry Greb a chance at the title any time he sees fit to get into the ring.

"All these screechers have to do is to show the color of their money and they will get the easiest-made match in the history of the ring."

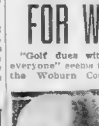
NEW CUT RATE GOLF COURSE FOR WOBURN

"Golf duss within the reach of everyone" seems to be the slogan of the Woburn Country Club. Recently they announced to the enthusiasts of a financial nature [illegible] to become associated with New England's latest golf and country club. It made considerable surprise and caused a flood of applications to the home of J. F. Wall in Woburn. The stock certificate plan was missing in the first place, and as quite often happens the dues were not jacked up to offset it.



W. H. Wilcox.

This was made possible through the efforts of Walter H. Wilcox, the president and prime mover in the organization, who acquired the property and has helped effect the early development of the club.

Thus Woburn gave high cost golf a knockout, and summoned the New Englanders looking for a golfing domicile dues of $40 a year for regular membership, with a $25 initiation fee. Family membership will cost at $50. The fair sex are being taken care of for $15 and non-residents receive a bill for but $10. No initiation fee is required for the latter two classes.

The course is being developed under the supervision of Gene Meagher, formerly of the Bay State Arlmont Club, and will have at least two holes finished by Memorial Day. Ultimately eighteen holes will be built

SPEEDY TORONTO TEAM BATTLES VICTORIAS

The Aura Lees, of Toronto, will play the Victorias tonight, and the B. A. A. tomorrow night, at the Arena. They are a crackerjack outfit.

Harold Cotton

The Toronto team was recruited by Coach Bill Marsden from the junior ranks of last season. While this departure was radical, it showed to the hockey fans across the border that all that juniors lacked was opportunity.

They have been the sensation of the Ontario Hockey Association. Every time they appear in a game the crowd goes wild over their work. Their rushing brand of hockey that is dashing, bewildering, aggressive and effective, just the combination that fans like to watch

The team has a man of exceptional merit in Charlie Dinsmore in centre ice. As a back-checker he ranks with the best in Canada. Back-checking is a hockey art further developed across the border than in America. Its importance is vital to success. Dinsmore never leaves his opponent, which means some lively scrimmages when this Maple Leaf crack gets with Red Symnott of the Vics tonight and Jerry Geran of B. A. A. tomorrow night.

Steve Rice and Harold Cotton, the w. ks are great board workers. These men have been playing on the Toronto rink for [illegible] years now exactly the same as the local arena, so they will be at home on the local surfaces.

Charley Dinsmore

Everybody likes a good body checker if it is done within the rules. There is something exciting when they start spilling all over the ice. English Patrick Cahill and Cha s Sydney the Aura Lee outfielder, will give local fans a demonstration of how they do it. These birds can scatter them.

The Victorias will have their best team to show against the Toronto youngsters. Raymie Skilton has assured Coach Stoke Doran that he will play.

Between the periods English High and Boston Latin will meet in their annual match.

Manager George V. Brown is negotiating with Duluth for games at the Arena March 6 and 8. Duluth has the great Sig Goodman as centre ice, the speed king and the fast-aggregation in the main attraction of a doubleheader slated for the Commonwealth Armory under the auspices of the 110th Cavalry tomorrow nigh

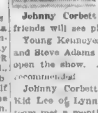
In the prelim leary match the Vikings will be given a chance to trim the 110th Cavalry eleven.

These indoor matches are more and more popular with Greater Boston fans A record crowd turned out for last week's battle between the Clansmen from Brookline and Methuen, and it is expected that even a greater throng will flock to the Commonwealth Armory pitch Saturday night to witness the return battle between the two local aggregations.

Manager Green of the Brookline team will field practically the same eleven that faced Methuen last week. Bobby Bayne, who has signed as a forward, has done commendable work between the uprights for the past several games, but he is a small man and has a tendency to hold the ball too long, which is an exceedingly dangerous habit.

The preliminary contest between the 110th Cavalry and the Vikings should also be an interesting exhibition. The horsemen have just recently taken up the game, but are learnings fast and have speed to burn, which is typical of American-born players. The Vikings have a couple of new stars to show off and will give their opponents a real test.

CASINO PUTS ON SHOW FOR ELKS



Johnny Corbett

The Casino A. C. of Lynn will conduct a monster benefit show Monday night for the Lynn Lodge of Elks, whose home was destroyed by fire last week Jack Murphy has arranged five eight-round bouts and the Elks and their friends will see plenty of action.

Young Kenmore of Derry, N. H., and Steve Adams of Milwaukee will open the show. Adams comes well recommended.

Johnny Corbett of Chicopee and Kid Lee of Lynn are paired. This came met a month ago at the Lynn club and the bout was a corker.

Ruby Levine of Lewiston and Zulu Zarelli of Boston should put up a bout that will have the crowd standing on the chairs.

The semi-final event at the original wild man of the ring, has drawn a tough one in Barney Troy of Boston. If Bunch adopts his usual tactics Barney is in for a busy evening

The final eight will introduce two of the fastest little fellows in this section of New England in Johnny Fox of Woburn and Francis Ryan of Everett.

CHAMPION SIDESTEPS WARD AND SHADE

Some real peculiar conditions exist in fistiana. Take the cases of Dave Shade and George Ward, the welterweight luminaries, who will battle in Mechanics Building next Tuesday night.

More than a year ago, Jack Britton, then champion, took Dave on in a bout at New York. It was called a draw at the conclusion. There were those who said it was an unsatisfactory decision. Did Britton immediately give Dave another chance? He did not.

Britton allowed Mickey Walker the chance the Shade sought and Mickey became champion as a result

Did Mickey then give the man who had held the former champion to a draw first chance to test him out in his new capacity as title holder? Ask Shade if you care to listen to some fiery language

Shade got a draw with a great champion in his fading days, cannot get a bout with a young champion of doubtful ability, and has been blasted because he seeks a bout with the champion of the class heavier than the one to which he belongs

Ward Boasts of a Victory Over Walker

Ward boasts of a victory over the same champion that has refused to give Shade a chance at the title, although the victory scored was obtained before Walker ascended to the throne.

Last year, Walker and Ward met twice. Both were decisionless contests, but they were of such a nature that the victor in each case was rather easily selected. Walker had enough of an edge in the first bout to be named the winner by the grand majority. And in the return mill, Ward seemed to be the unanimous choice for the honors.

Then when Mickey became champion, did he insist that the rubber bout with Ward be fought so that he could assert his superiority over George? He did not

Mickey Refused an Offer for big Purse

As a matter of fact and as has been made known to Boston fans Mickey has refused to listen to an offer of a $30,000 purse for a rubber battle with Ward which, of course, would be a championship battle.

And so it goes. The better a contender performs against a champion—providing he doesn't win—the worse the situation becomes for him. At least, that's the way it looks to both Ward and Shade.

LONGEST SCHOOL GAME OF YEAR AT ARENA

Cambridge Latin and Arlington played the longest schoolboy game of hockey this year at the Arena when both teams battled one hour and six minutes to a two-two score. It was the best bit of hockey that followers of scholastic sports have witnessed in years.

Arlington was the stronger and showed to an advantage as the contest went on but the defensive play of the Cantabs baffled attempts to score. After each team had scored one goal in the regular three 15-minute periods it was decided to play an extra 10-minute session.

No score resulted and another and still another were played without result.

The lineup and summary:

HARVARD BANKS ON BURKE TO STAR IN TRIANGULAR MEET

THREE FIRSTS GOAL OF CRIMSON CAPTAIN.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Can Billy Burke, Harvard's track captain, win three events in tomorrow's Mechanics Building triangular meet?

On the answer to that question hinges Harvard's chances of acquiring its first triangular meet championship since that event was inaugurated six years ago.

Can Jim Billy is to start in three events, according to present plans. One of the three is the relay; another is the 1,000-yard run, and the third will be either the 600-yard run or the one mile, and if Billy can win both runs in which he starts and then brings his relay team home the winner in the baton-passing number, Harvard will have an excellent chance of nosing out Dartmouth for the title.

It's a whale lot to expect of one man in the course of an evening, particularly when another busy season will face him next week in the annual intercollegiate indoor championships, but Harvard's hopes rest upon it, and Billy is willing to make the try.

Despite that fact, however, the team from Hanover will rule the favorite, with Harvard a seemingly sure second placer, and Cornell the tail-end team of the three-ply combination.

There are several reasons why Dartmouth is the pick. One is the fact Dartmouth relishes the heavy loss of athletes who took twenty points last year, whereas Harvard retains the winners of only sixteen and one half points, while Cornell boasts the winners of only nine points in the track events.

Another comes in the fact that Dartmouth, since 1922, has acquired the services of Mark Skiles, winner of the B. A. A. pole vault; Walsh, a sterling middle distance man; Fuhrer, a promising hurdler, and several others who are likely to show in one or another of the thirteen events which make up the triangular program.

Scholastic Troubles Eliminated Several

A short while ago Dartmouth appeared a real contender in tomorrow's meet, but scholastic troubles eliminated Roger Harris, broad jumper and hurdler; Bradford Weisiger, sprinter, and several other possible point scorers. Lacking them, however, Dartmouth appears sufficiently well provided to nose out the Crimson and substantially outscore Cornell.

In Young, Dartmouth appears to possess the winner of the two mile run. In Soltz, the Big Green has a middle distance man, and in Brown, the winner of the high jump and possibly the broad jump; in Libby, the winner of the pole vault; in Lee, the winner of the shot put, and in Swenson, the winner of the 35-pound weight throw, Dartmouth appears to have the edge to score in the 10's; Walsh is a probable scorer in the 600 and 1000; Whittinghill is a possible scorer in the mile; Hughes a probable point-gatherer in the hurdles; Skiles a probable and Sammis a possible scorer in the pole vault; Turnbull a possible scorer in both the shot and 35-pound weight.

Would Seem to Assure Dartmouth 45 Points

This would seem to assure Dartmouth 45 or 50 points and unless the athletes of either Harvard or Cornell vastly exceed expectations neither is apt to equal that total.

Harvard sprinters run into tough Cornell competition, in both the 50 and 300-yard dashes if Burke runs in the mile he will be opposed by Kirby of Cornell, who twice has defeated him and generally in events in which Dartmouth is weak, the comparative abilities of Harvard and Cornell athletes would indicate a splitting of points that would prevent either of the latter from beating the Green. However, Harvard has the better chance of the two, and if Burke can win two of the runs and bring his team home a winner in the relay, he may put the Crimson across.

HARRY DAVIS IS SOME VAULTER

Harvard has a pole vaulter in Harry Davis, who shines best in competition. He was given no chance of scoring in the triangular meet with Cornell and Dartmouth last Winter but broke through to a tie for second with Ed Goulnick of Cornell at twelve feet. Davis duplicated that height at the recent B. A. A. games and is now figured as a Crimson scoring prospect in Saturday's fifth annual H-D-C triangular meet here. Davis is like the rose that must blush unseen, for he will compete Saturday afternoon at the baseball cage, while the plaudits will go to the athletes who participate in the events Saturday night at Mechanics Building.

"Try To Hit It" The BULLSEYE By NICK FEATLEY

LATEST invention of ingenious human is universal eye. Works like pointer in old school map. Just focus it on something, and you see it. Electrified, of course, so folks will probably see plenty of shocking sights. Offers unlimited opportunity to do away with husband late [illegible] greater than that for the female of the species.

Her husband who is hooked in and wants to get his money back, will phone home that he's busy at the office. Then she will get out the family looker and call his bluff. By flashing around sufficiently, she can discover his whereabouts, and then break into the game herself. The boys who bet on the race can look up the track and size their good things go to ruin. We can take a peek at Siberia and see the well known hounds, and watch the Bolsheviks tripping down the Russian steppes. Easy to grab the real dope on the yellow peril by hooking on the Orient, although we haven't discovered yet whether the new machine will distinguish colors. Wonderful thing for newspaper man. The boy who writes the real story in the office can attach his eagle eye to fire and discover that alleged holocaust of reporter is nothing more than face paint. He can view them digging up the dope on ancient Egypt and tell all about it without attaching any F. R. G. S. or other symbols onto his name. Pitiless eye of publicity will always be on the job, as soon as night lighting attachment is discovered, which at present rate of speed, will not be for at least a week. Since modern era made genius a paying proposition, the boys with the ideas are working overtime. Looks like a tough life for the birds with the bankrolls, who stall off the touches by claiming poverty. Applicant with all sense of newsgrub can look right in to pockets, and make demands accordingly.

STASIAK BEATS ROGALASKI EASILY

George Calza, the Italian champion, did not wrestle Stanley Stasiak the Polish champion at the Grand Opera House. Calza sent word that he had injured his knee and could not come here.

The news came too late for the management to call off the show, but in order to give the public warning that Calza would not appear a notice was posted at the box office to that effect and it was also announced from the stage that Calza would not contest with the Polish giant.

Many were disappointed that Calza did not appear. John Rogalaski, the Finnish champion, went against the man from Poland. Stasiak won in two straight falls in 46 minutes 17 seconds and 10 minutes 12 seconds. The first fall was with a flying mare, and the second with a double wrist lock and head scissors.

He is flying fast again this Winter, and no surprise would be occasioned if he won the dash at the fifth annual triangular H-D-C meet at Mechanics Building Saturday night. He is a husky, with a fine pair of sprinting legs.

Father Dies at Ringside as Son Wins Bout

New York, Feb. 23.—Morris Meola, lightweight pugilist, was awarded a decision over Bobbie Green in a slashing six-round bout in the One Hundred and Fourth Field Artillery Regiment Armory.

Among the cheering spectators sat Morris' aged father, Pasquale Meola.

When the final gong clanged, the referee gave the decision to Morris and the enthusiasm of the father knew no bounds. He stood up on his chair and cheered loudly. Just as his victorious son stepped from the ring, however, Meola suddenly collapsed. By the time a physician reached him, he was dead. Death resulted from heart disease, induced by excitement over his son's victory.

WINTER CARNIVAL AT ST. JOHNSBURY

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 23.—St. Johnsbury Academy's interscholastic Winter carnival will be held at St. Johnsbury March 3, and added interest will be given by the participation in the sports of members of the Dartmouth Outing Club.

There will be an illustrated lecture on Winter sports in Academy Hall, March 2, and demonstrations of ski jumping and snowshoeing on March 3.

Competitors will be present from some of the schools of northeastern Vermont.

CITY OF BOSTON CUP CAPTURED BY RAY

Although not allowed to wear spikes at the American Legion games in the East Armory, Joie Ray, greatest of all indoor distance runners, succeeded in spiking two things.

By winning the City of Boston Invitation mile, Joie spiked his name permanently on that trophy, wrapped it up and took it home. Then in his announcement, later having received the valuable prize, Joie spiked the rumor that he was shortly to retire from track athletics. Joie plans to win the Olympic 1,500-meters at Paris next year.

Joie Ray

Although Joie, who competed in the Georgetown University games at Washington Wednesday night, entered the Legion feature shortly after arriving in Boston after an all night and very sleepless train ride from the Capital, he had no trouble in capturing the Boston Mile, and, as he twice before had won the event, the trophy became his permanent possession.

Bob Brown, former Cornell distance star, proved the only one of the remaining five starters to threaten the Olympic speedster, and Bob's threat didn't amount to much after the seventh lap of the ten lap race. Bob finished an easy second, with Elmer Sanborn of Tech bringing up in third place, with the time of the race—4 minutes, 26 seconds—seconds below what many expected.

Ray running in the Boston Mile with Joe Tierney of Holy Cross in the Gaston 600, Bill McKillop's schoolboy record breaking triumph in the 1,000-yard run and the relay victories [illegible] Brookline High school and B. C. High, Brookline, Medford and Newton, and the New York and Massachusetts Legion teams, proved the outstanding features of one of the most successful [illegible] meets yet conducted by the World War veteran organization.

Koppish Took Command Early in the Race

Koppish, who ruled the favorite in the Gaston 600, took command early in the race, and thought he could do about as he pleased. But on the back stretch of the last lap, Tierney, the Purple runner, caught Koppish napping and swept past him into the lead. Before Koppish realized what had happened they were rounding into the final turn, and it was only through a most thrilling spurt that the New Yorker captured the event.

Bill McKillop, the English High boy, lowered Earl Dudley's schoolboy thousand yard record one and one-fifth seconds when he traveled the distance in 2 minutes 25 and 4-5 seconds. Harney McDermott of B. C. High forced him to the pace and finished second, with Edward Hall of Huntington School in third position.

MacFarland's Spurt Gives Huntington Victory

The brilliant spurt of Dick MacFarland, anchor man for Huntington School, gave that institution a spectacular victory over Boston College High in the closest and most exciting schoolboy relay number Spinney, No. 1 for Huntington, finished his relay with a few yards to spare, but Mawn of B. C. High slid home ahead of Parker, and McCarthy of B. C. H. continued to lead in the third relay.

McFarland, starting several yards behind Donovan, the B. C. H. anchor, was soon dogging his steps, and advancing the spurt on the last turn and setting it advanced down the stretch, worked in ahead of the Heights boy for the victory.

Frank Daley's anchor performance for Brookline High, which carried him into the lead just before the tape was reached, enabled Brookline High to upset the dope by vanquishing the strong Medford High quartet.

Massachusetts Department Wins From New York

The Massachusetts department triumphed over the New York department in the American Legion medley relay championship. Eddie Farrell of New York led Joe Sullivan of Massachusetts in the first relay, but Dillon counted up a lead of Higgins; Jake Driscoll added to the Massachusetts advantage in the third relay against Syd Lewis, and Art Kirley of Massachusetts held that lead while running anchor against Mike Devanney.

Dan Moore of Medford won the schoolboy fifty-yard dash; Charley Carroll from scratch won the senior handicap fifty-yard. Bridge beat Coughlin in their relay; Hyde Park vanquished Dorchester and Commerce—the latter finishing second, running out because of losing the baton; Orient Heights League beat the First Corps Cadets relay team; Gordon Clark of Hyde Park won the schoolboy 440, with Francis McCloskey of Brighton second, and Dick MacFarland of Huntington, third; Lynn Classical beat Lynn English; Fairhaven High beat St. Johns and Dean Academy; Brighton High won a four-sided relay with Trade, South Boston and West Roxbury; the New York Finnish Athletic Club team of Ritola and Prim was the winner in the three-mile team race, and Williams College relay four defeated the Boston College quartette in the single college event on the program.

BOSTON RATES ON DISCOUNT UP TODAY

New York Federal Reserve Bank has increased the rediscount rate from 4 per cent. to 4½ per cent. This change in rate applies to all classes of paper. Directors of Federal Reserve Bank of Boston voted to increase discount rates on all classes of paper from 4 per cent to 4½ per cent, effective February 23. This change reflects the upward trend of commercial rates evidence throughout the country for some time past.

The first reduction from the 7 per cent level began in Boston on April 1921, followed by two reductions of ½ per cent, each to that level in New York. In June still further cuts marked down further to 5½ per cent. in September, 1921 to 5 per cent.; in November, 1921, to 4½ per cent.; and in June 23, 1922, to 4 per cent., from which the present change is made.

FRENCH TEXTILES HAVE GOOD YEAR

French textile industries enjoyed a prosperous year in 1922. Output of French woolen and cotton mills for the year was more than double the production in 1921 and equalled 70 per cent. of the pre war annual output.

Post-war figures of French textile output, contrasted with pre war figures, are approximately as follows, according to the Bankers' Trust Company:

	Pounds
1923	88,000,000
1921	33,000,000
1920	43,000,000
1913	110,000,000

Last year's increased production is spelled out in all branches of the industry, but was especially marked in woolens, the production in that branch amounting to 54,000,000 pounds, against 30,000,000 pounds in 1921.

CHEMICAL AND DRUG TRADING IS SLOW

General chemical and drug trading has been slow this week. Copper's recent rise has brought out higher prices for copper sulfate, much in demand at this time. Tin and zinc salts are also higher, basis drug and chemical markets. Trade portation of chemicals in all quarters of the country is delayed by storms and embargoes, and has caused many local shortages. Alkalies are in steady demand as is bleaching powder. Cream tartar is firmer. Oil of citronella appears to be headed for record breaking prices as it continues to climb. Quicksilver is weaker. Camphor is firmer and tending upward.

17,000 Agents visit the homes of 17,000,000 Industrial Policyholders weekly—telling them of the value of sanitation, fresh air and sunshine.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S TWO PAGES OF LAUGHTER

Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

TODAY I clearly recollect the tears I used to shed for Crusoe when his ship was wrecked and all his mates were dead. I sorrowed at his awful plight, it made my spirits low to know there was no aid in sight to lessen Crusoe's woe. It seemed a dreadful thing to me when that poor castaway, cut off by the relentless sea, upon his isle mast stay. I used to cry "Alas alack" when thinking of his state how in a rude, unfinished shack for years he had to wait. His only clothes were made of skins, and natives were so queer that oft he feared their javelins might finish his career. So, formerly, with furrowed brow I wept for his mishap, but if consulted on it now I'd say he had a snap. He dressed in skins, but what of that? Skins should be good enough today. It takes a plutocrat to pull that line of stuff. His home was but a shack, mine's also on that style; but, knowing what it sets me back I sigh for Crusoe's isle. No phonograph marred Crusoe's days, and though his funds were short, he had no income tax to raise, no auto to support. No telephone disturbed his sleep, no Central caused him woe; yet, I would say he got off cheap, he had no radio! Old Robinson appealed of yore to undeveloped boys, but now, it makes me pretty sore to think of all his joys. I sometimes think that I'll embark upon some leaky boat to seek in place of care and cark, an island and a goat. And, listening to my parrot's chat, in that delightful sifu, I'd pay no rent upon my flat and need no anthracite!

While living in Clifton, Arizona, I went with my next door neighbor, who was also my landlady, to do some shopping. I knew the young man who waited on us was a Mormon. On our way back from the store another man passed us who was so much like the one in the store that I asked her if it was he. She told me they were half-brothers, that there was six of them so much alike that you could hardly tell them apart. "Oh!" I said, "I think that is terrible." Imagine my embarrassment when she said she was a Mormon and also all her family.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Jokes," Boston American.

A sharp-tongued, red-faced lawyer was cross-examining a witness as to his sobriety. "You were seen," he began, "entering the Spread Eagle as soon as the doors were open or soon afterward."
"Yes," replied the witness, "but not to drink."
"What object had you in view then?" asked the lawyer.
"The only object I had in view, sir, as I went in was yourself coming out."

Three O'Clock in the Morning.

When it's early in the morning
And I sneak into the house,
I never make a bit of noise
I softly tread right past the room
Where sleep the Pa and Ma,
For the hand that rocks the cradle

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A SPORT which is becoming popular with our millionaires is to go out every morning before breakfast on a fox hunt. This gives everybody lots of thrills, especially the fox.

THE hunters usually wear bright red coats and this shows that they're brave men because some farmer is liable to shoot them, thinking that they're British soldiers.

A HOUND tracks the fox by scent, but once in a while the fox is wise and fools the dog by taking a bath.

NINE times out of ten the dogs capture him, but if a hunter is a real sport he'll present the fox with a pair of roller skates.

A FOX-HOUND is like a Ford; it often runs for no reason at all.

ONCE in a while they have rehearsals of these hunts and this is very trying on the fox. He doesn't know whether they're in earnest or just practicing.

IN most cases the fox wants to be captured. He's so fatigued from running that he's tickled to death to have a chance to ride back in the dog's teeth.

OF course the dogs grab him by the neck, but he'd rather have a sore throat than tired feet.

IT'S against the ethics of the game, however, for a hound to bite the fox to death, but there might be some new dogs in the hunt which haven't read the rules.

THE hunters ought to take the dogs and the fox into the clubhouse before the hunt and read them a couple of chapters from the book of etiquette.

ASK ADVICE OF OTHERS

Do you feel there is something about your work which is not as it should be—that your work lacks punch to put it over in good shape?

There is a certain element necessary and lacking, but you cannot determine what it is.

You dislike to be humiliated, you are averse to making this fact known to some other man in the same line who is a greater success, so you continue to grope in the dark.

It would be better for you to admit your weakness, or lack of knowledge, or whatever is needed to make you advance, and gain the desired instruction.

You never will improve to any great degree until you get help.

You need outside advice and assistance, but you are afraid to ask it or buy it from those who know.

If you prefer to wobble about rather than admit your deficiency there is no hope for you. Overcome your weakness and find out from others what is wrong with your case.

Your Nose Knows.

Bell—Because it goes on right under her nose.

Getting an Early Start.

First Tramp—And how did you get your start in life?

Second ditto—My mother dropped me out of the window when I was a baby.

THE MAN AT BOLAND'S

A Country Story of a Girl Who Had Been Wilful When Young and Headstrong, but Unfailing in Wifely Duties

By Ruth Logan

MATTIE BOLAND had made her bed, so let her lie in it.

This was the sum total of sympathy that the woman obtained from those who knew best just how hard that bed was.

If Mattie resented her lot, she as d nothing whatever about it. She had been wilful as a girl, a headstrong as a woman, but unfailingly dutiful as a wife and mother. The man she had married was worthless, as even Mattie had come to know, and day by day she saw the little farm slip more surely into the hands of Sears, who held the mortgage.

She had little time to contemplate the horrible future because little Eddie was such a care. When she wasn't scrubbing, sewing, milking and feeding chickens, she was either cooking, washing dishes or rocking a sick baby.

Eddie was three. Mattie had gained him after the hired man, because at the time of young Edward's arrival, the derelict who had floated into their midst and assumed a place in the household by reason of Mattie's tender-heartedness had ministered to her as gently as any woman could have done.

In fact, Mattie believed that Edward Nash had studied medicine at some time or other, so deft were his fingers and so keen his knowledge of the proper things to do for the sick.

The neighbors thought it was a most outrageous thing—the naming of a young baby for a man even more worthless than the child's father, if such were possible. They began to talk rather insinuatingly among themselves, and finally the gossip reached the ears of Neil Boland. It was shortly after this that the hired man left without previously announcing his departure.

The day the beam fell on Neil and crushed him he was dying, but he regained consciousness just long enough to say in the presence of the village doctor and three neighboring women that Mattie was the best woman on earth and that his only regret was leaving her and Eddie.

The Man Comes Back.

The funeral was held at the shabby little farm house and the countryside gathered to pay their last respects to a man they had never respected. When two of the women returned home with Mattie, they found a stranger sitting on the stoop beside the pump. He was a young man with a clean-carefully shaven face, dressed in a fine blue suit—and looking generally prosperous.

"Hello, Mattie," he said, "with an attempt at solemnity. "I'm back. Thought maybe you'd need a hired man."

Mattie recognized Edward Nash and gasped. Whether Eddie remembered his early nurse or not is a matter of conjecture, but his chubby arms went out to the man and Mattie was relieved of her burden.

The two women went inside after shaking hands with the former hired man, and began to prepare a bit of food for the widow who had remained so strangely silent during the death and burial of her husband.

"You never liked me, Mattie, and I knew it, but that doesn't stop me from being eternally grateful to you for taking me in and—and naming the youngster for me. Do you know that was the thing that made a man of me? I saw that Neil was never going to make good and give the kid a chance and that I'd better do it. I'm not going to be such a fool as to ask you to marry me.

"I know how you loved Neil, and maybe I know better than others how many very nice traits he had under all the devilish ones. His was as lazy as could be, but he loved you, Mattie, and I never saw him abuse you by word or deed.

"Perhaps it was because you are so loyal to the down-and-out fellow that I like you and want to help you. There are folks in the world, you know, who are such failures themselves that they have to stay away from the other failures in order to keep from drawing attention to themselves."

"I'm a failure, all right," said Mattie. "I knew what folks said about Neil, but I always will think that there would have been some way to reach him if I had found it out. I always felt Neil was just a little boy, and I couldn't bear to make him do anything he didn't want to. If I had quarreled about things he would have done them, but—maybe he wouldn't have loved me so much. I just wanted him to love me. Even the money that went—I couldn't bring myself to ask him about that."

Edward Nash reached over and patted her hand. "That's what I came to see you about. Neil gave me the money."

"I always thought so."

"I—I wanted to invest it for him."

"Your tea is ready," said Mrs. Gaunt from the doorway.

A Rich Little Widow

"Just a minute, Mrs. Gaunt Mattie'll need a stimulant when she hears something I've come to tell her. Every penny of the money Neil failed to account for after he mortgaged the farm is in stock that will take care of her and little Eddie for life. You've got a rich little widow in your midst down here."

"I've got to be getting back to town to catch the train," said Edward Nash. "I'm taking the railroad track. It's shorter. Couldn't resist the walk out—just like I used to do."

"And Neil did provide for me, Mattie sobbed. "Oh, nothing makes me unhappy now. It's wonderful to know your husband loved you like that—willing to do without everything while he lived in order to take care of me and Eddie."

"So long," said the former hired man. "Got to be on my way."

His going made no difference to Mattie. She was transported to another realm by this new phase of Neil. The first happiness she had known for years was here.

A few minutes later a man in a blue serge suit stepped off the rails of the track he was walking and took a short cut through to the cemetery where Neil was buried. He did not take off his hat at the grave. He simply doubled his hands into fists and bit his lips.

"She wouldn't have taken a penny if she hadn't thought it came from you, Neil. I meant to tell her the truth, but she's happier this way. You failed a woman who loved and trusted you. May God forgive me—I'm helping her to believe you were a man."

Appreciative Audience Properly Thrilled

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

CLIPPING from a criticism—"I am sure Ann Co- cupied by the elite of the town. The play itself was a decided success. It held the audience spellbound from start to finish—from the lifting of the curtain on the first act to the strong, well-acted climax. Its dialogue delightful—its story old, but clothed in new and charming language—its stars a marvelous couple of young people, whose names will be the toast of the town from this night forth! At the great scene the audience held its breath—thrilled and appreciative!"

The elite is there a'right—and you can "hear a pin drop" or the rustle of a cramped fat leg in a starched romper. The elite is there—and the ingredients of the elite are—one ragged blue pup with a continual smile and a great affection for everybody in his family—a lanky small chap with his hair up-ended, his shoes scuffed, a peeled nose and one talent (and that is delivering "Horatius at the Bridge" on the last day of school with an unbelievable ferocity), chapped little fists, and a vast appreciation of the play—one atom of a kid who squats on his heels with his plump fists clutched around his tummy, who has to be dug and nudged and gritted at because his deeply smiling face and scrutched shoulders show an alarming likelihood of a terrible giggle just bustin' out—one delightful small girl who has just read "The Crushed Lily" behind her geography, who tosses her taffy curls back over her shoulders and switches her skirts when she passes the "new Boy," whose small heart dimly understands some minutes and scoffs at others—one other bit-laddie with eyes like his big sister, one first tooth gone (and he can whistle through it 'til it tears the sky apart and his sister demands his life-blood), and his eyes are very wide with wonder at the ways of grown-up maids and men, and he's forgotten to even whisper a whistle through the treasured place of his vanished tooth. This is the audience—thrilled and appreciative! And the players—the twin bright stars—are a big sister and her very best beau, who just words a halting, breathless, ardent "I— — love you—do YOU love me?"—NELL BRINKLEY.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"HOW you mock me in very clever," she declared. "I have told you before and I am now reminding you that I like to find me a woman worthy of my steel. You are very good sport, Anne Harrison. And very clever woman, and I think sometimes I would not hurt you ever—if I could help it. Ah—here is my little friend, Miss May."

"YOU ARE VERY GOOD SPORT, ANNE HARRISON."

Something in my blood boiled. My indignation was divided between resentment at Rosa's calm assumption that she could hurt me, and her patronizing sweetness to the fine little woman she had just called a white rabbit. But I had to calm down and adjust myself to the fact that Rosa is Rosa, for she actually knelt in front of Miss May and helped her off with the rubbers that little lady wears at the slightest suggestion of dampness in the air. And when Rosa hung up Miss May's coat and gave her a little pat on the shoulder, adding a question or two about what she'd had to eat—I realized that to patronize and to criticize is not Rosa's way of showing lack of affection.

I tried to picture the little Cordova with her husband, but I found myself on the verge of an almost hysterical conjecture, which might be miles from the truth, but was very funny.

I've an idea that Rosa lords it over her Ramon and pats him on the back much after the fashion in which she "babies" Miss May. But Rosa Cordova needs a master—no, a slave. I wonder where a woman of her calibre will find what she desires.

Of this I am sure—wherever Rosa finds what she thinks she requires for her happiness, she will take it—if she can. And if some one else has to suffer and pay, Rosa will not regard that as any of her concern.

As soon as Rosa had assured herself of Miss May's wellbeing and had permitted us the exchange of a word or two, I was hurried off to the place appointed to meet Manuela Ortiz. He was alone, and at sight of Rosa's scowling face he came forward with something actually resembling a bow. Ignoring me, he spoke to Rosa in fluent Spanish, accompanied by much shrugging of his shoulders and rollings of his expressive eyes.

Rosa interrupted him almost coldly.

"Maybe you do not see today so good. But here is also my friend Anne," she sneered, managing to belittle both Manuela and me.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

(The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.)

TODAY let us consider the natural beauty of slimness, and the enjoyable exercises that helps to bring it about. And let us more particularly dwell upon the importance to beauty of slim hips and thighs.

All the great sculptures—the Greek Venus of Milo, the Winged Victory of Samanthrace and many others—portray the ideal woman with a straight back, flat stomach and hips slightly curved, but not rounded to a degree of fatness.

The same exercises that has helped to strengthen and straighten your back, stomach and abdomen—I hope you have adopted that already discussed—is also improving the shape of your hips, be sure of that! But here is another especially for that purpose.

Lie flat on your stomach on the floor or on your bed with your arms parallel with your sides, palms down. Now lift your right leg up and back as far as you can without bending your knees. Try this several times, then alternate, lifting your left leg back and up in the same way. Finally lift both legs back and up. Be careful not to move the rest of your body, including your head and arms. This exercise may be comfortably taken ten or twelve times when you become accustomed to it.

On the other hand, if you are so thoroughly exhausted for any reason that exercise is painful—in other words, if you are not well—do not force yourself to take this or any other exercise. Follow the dictates of your own common sense if you would gain all the good from exercise.

You will find that your daily regime of twenty minutes' active work before an open window gives you an excellent appetite, and this is as it should be.

There is no reason why you should not eat as much as you feel you need, provided you choose simple, nourishing food and do not eat too fast. With such simple active habits, you need not fear obesity for one moment, unless indeed you are so abnormal as to require the attention of your physician. But keep active mentally and physically, and do not forget your moments of exercise before your open window each day.

After a long argument they decided to refer the question to a disinterested critic. "Bill," they asked the boatswain, "what's a heifer? We're having an argument." Bill bit off a large chew of tobacco reflectively. "To tell you the truth, mates," he said, "I dunno much about poultry."

Whenever I am near a woman I can't help but see the image of death. When I caress her silky hair I suddenly seem to feel a smooth, hard, yellow skull, like those one sees protruding from the ground in abandoned cemeteries. A kiss on the mouth or nibble at her chin rouge in me a vision of the bony jaw, with its teeth not so different from those of the anthropoids in the museums.

"The eyes will fade; the nose, with its graceful curves and smiling nostrils, will dissolve likewise; the only solid and sure parts are the black sockets and the grotesque snub nose of the skull.

"The swelling breasts are nothing more than false tumors that hide the ghastly cage of the ribs; the legs, which seem to us wonderful columns, are stringy flesh and water that will dissolve, leaving two long, calcareous pipe-stems. We imagine we are adoring supreme beauty, but we are embracing a skeleton. The image of death fills us with horror, and every woman carries one within her and compels us to worship it."

Now it was Castro's turn to gaze in astonishment. His eyes, fixed on the Prince, seemed to say: "He is mad."

"The trouble with you, Michael, is that you're over-enjoyed," he said after a long pause. "What difference is it to me if a woman has a skeleton inside? I have one, too, and that doesn't prevent me from taking a great deal of joy in the pleasures of life and considering as the most interesting of all those pleasures the meeting of two skeletons."

"Let me say it again—you are simply over-tired; you have the same lack of appetite and gloomy visions as those who are suffering from a painful indigestion. You are still too young for this debility to last; you will recover; your appetite will come back. I hope you don't find the table set as in the past, that you will be stimulated by the mere fact of an obstacle that abstinence will make you suffer keenly, and then!

. . . Just wait till then!"

In a brooding silence Prince Michael crossed the big dining room and passed on but through the doorway. As the hall he ran straight into Alicia, Princess de Deille, standing close to a window, her back toward him, just as he had seen her, a few hours before, coming out of the concert at the Casino.

No Women

No woman should ever again set foot across the threshold of Villa Sirena, the stronghold of the Enemies of Women. All of the group had agreed to that and Prince Michael himself had given strict orders that none be admitted on any pretext whatsoever.

Nevertheless, he entered the living hall one day to run straight into a woman standing close to the window, her back toward him looking at the gardens and the sea. When she turned her head Michael recognized her. He felt sure, however, he would never have known her had the meeting been elsewhere, so much had his youthful friend, Alicia, Duchess de Dellbe, changed since that disturbing night when he had dined alone with her in her "study" on the Avenue du Bois, with its weird Oriental knick-knacks and unwholesome perfumes. Some time had passed since then, yet Alicia seemed fresher and younger.

Her eyes had lost that veiled disturbing fire that made them look larger, and gave a fixed unnatural stare. The dull whiteness of her skin had taken on color from the sun and open air. Her airy, undulating lithesness had become less willowly, giving her person the calm tranquility of bodies beginning to crystalize into their definite form.

The Prince's scrutiny was interrupted by Alicia's amused smile. She seemed entirely to have forgotten the affront he had offered her pride that unforgettable night in her "study." Then she had sworn she would never forgive him, never forget that he had somehow escaped the net of her sinuous charms—yet here she was, and it seemed from her quiet manner as though she had been there in that very place only the day before.

"It is so hard to get in touch with you—practically impossible," she complained. "So I decided to pay you this visit. It isn't exactly proper for a lady to call on a person with such a terrible reputation as you have; but I'm not the first one who has come here. There have been lots of others!"

She laughed teasingly as she said this. But immediately she became serious, and added timidly:

"I might have written you; but I was afraid you wouldn't reply, or would simply tell me to deal with your agent in Paris. It has been such a long time since we've seen each other."

"I dazzled him with my world of luxury and pleasure . . . I swear it was the happiest time in my life."

Michael smiled, making a gesture of indignant denial.

"I came about my debt—the loans that your mother made me some time ago. I didn't know how much they amounted to. Your agent now says they are over four hundred thousand francs. It must be so if he maintains it. At times when I was in straits I asked for something, and the Princess, who was such a great lady, kept giving and giving, without either of us paying any attention to the amounts. Now I see how tremendously generous she must have been.

Court Action

Now Michael understood the reason for Alicia's visit. Gradually he recalled that when his mother died she left a long memorandum of all the loans she had made, and that Alicia's name figured among the debtors. His agent evidently had wanted to raise more money and had been sending Alicia letter after letter, demanding the payment of her enormous debt.

"His last note was threatening, because of my silence," Alicia explained. "It notified me that action would be brought against me in court!

"The other day I saw you in the Casino—I saw you from behind as you were running away from people. You frightened me; I imagined then that you had changed, that you were very different from the man I knew, and that we would never come to an understanding. Lated I thought you mustn't be quite as terrible as you seemed—and I came."

Michael, remaining silent, seemed to be saying something with his eyes, which were fixed on Alicia. Why had she really come, he wondered. What was it she wished to propose to him?

She smiled with an expression of cynical amusement.

"I came to tell you thas I can't pay you now—and perhaps never, to beg you to wait. I don't know how long, and to ask you to see that that disagreeable fellow who is managing your estate doesn't annoy me with his insolence."

And as the Prince made no move she continued:

"I'm ruined."

"So am I," said Michael. "We're all ruined. The munition makers are the only people with any money now."

How Little Sallie Earned the Big Doll She Wanted

(A story for the big mothers of little girls and little mothers of big dolls.)

Once upon a time, a few days before Christmas, in a large downtown store, Santa Claus showed her a little Sallie. Her real name is done up in the cutest blond curls, with a pink ribbon, and her blue eyes—

"Oh, mother, if I could only have her I'd—"

"Now, Sallie, I've asked Santa to put her away for a little while and I'm going to tell you just how you can earn the money to buy her all by yourself—

"Right down on the corner is one of Connor's Brookside Stores, where they sell the nicest milk for only 12c a quart. Every day while the snow lasts, if you'll take your sled down there and bring home two quarts, mother will save about 10c a day on milk alone.

"And on your sled, at the same time, you can stick home our coffee, EGGS, biscuits, tea, crackers, cheese, canned foods, and all the other groceries we need.

"I'll make out a list of what we want every day and you can give it to the store manager. He likes to have little girls and boys come down there sled-shopping."

"But, mother how does that get me a doll?"

"Well, Sallie darling, it's just this way—the Brookside Stores sell fine things to eat much cheaper than most stores do. That's because people buy so much for what they buy and carry it home.

"If you do mother's shopping, she will save enough very soon, to buy you a big doll."

° ° ° ° ° °

(One month later)

"Oh, mother, I was afraid Santa wouldn't keep her for me. Oh, goody, goody, and did Cash and Carry bring her to me?"

"Yes, Sallie, and do you know what the Brookside plan of Cash and Carry means?"

"I'm sure I do, mother—it means how little girls can help their mothers save enough money to get them new dolls even a long time after Santa has gone back home to the North Pole."

"That's right, Sallie, and it means, too, that daddy doesn't have to pay out nearly so much money for our groceries — so mother, and her little girl, can have more nice things to wear."

Let's be Brooksiders always, mother—and "Cash and Carriers, too.

FURNITURE IN HOME

By Marian Moore

HOW TO FILL IN

WISELY grouping new pieces of small furniture often relieves a bare space and achieves a homelike effect where a single large piece would seem heavy and make the room appear crowded.

A small table, an "occasional" chair and a mirror completes a group that is at once comfortable and pictorially pleasing. The chair in the group is horseshoe shaped, upholstered with damask showing a floral pattern. The small table fits flat against the wall, but the outer rim is octagonal in shape, with panels decorated with a floral design. It is topped by a mirror whose carved gold frame carries out the floral motif.

The window draperies are of gray art silk, with linen casement curtains. The reflection in the mirror surpasses the manner in which the grouping is balanced by a lamp and easychair on the opposite side of the room, but the combination of table, chair and mirror would also be good for the hall.

Answer: Never hang a picture so the cord forms an angle at the top of the frame. Hang it with two cords straight down from a picture molding, or from two hangers. The cord may have a tassel at each side, which gives a decorative effect.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

Be Sure to Read Them to Your Children

By Blanche Silver

David Meets a Queer Little Street Cleaner.

"GET out of my way, you crazy thing!" David exclaimed as a large black beetle circled around his head one evening. "I can't see what good you fellows are, anyway. I'd kill every one of you if I had half a chance!"

"My goodness!" shouted a merry voice, and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, came tumbling down beside David. "Who is it you're threatening? Surely not my little watchman friend here," he said, pointing to the large black beetle.

"Indeed I am," replied David. "Of course, I'm not going to kill her, because I've never harmed anything in all my life. But I just can't see, for the life of me, what good those old beetles are anyway. All they do is to fly around your head every night and make you dodge to keep from getting hit in the face."

"Well!" laughed a squeaky voice, and a large black beetle flew down beside David and Squeedee and held out her hand. "If it isn't my old friend, Squeedee! I'm mighty glad to see you. Hello, there, David!" and she held out her foot to shake. "What's that I heard you say about my being a good-for-nothing?"

"I guess David is honest in that remark," said Squeedee. "I'm sure he's like a good many other children. He doesn't know your worth or the wonderful work you and your family do. You see, David, Mrs. Black Beetle, or I should call her by her real name—Mrs. Dor Beetle—and her relatives are one of the best street cleaning gangs we have."

"Street-cleaners!" cried David. "What do you mean? I never knew they were good for anything at all."

"Indeed, we are good for some thing," proceeded Mrs. Dor Beetle, "even if what we do looks rather selfish. You see, we roll all the offensive stuff that we can find lying around loose into a ball. And into this we put our eggs and then bury it all under the ground. Now, don't you think that's a great help?"

"Well, I guess it is," replied David. "I'm sorry I called you 'good-for-nothing.' Mother says I'm always speaking too quickly—saying things before I know whether they are true or not. I just saw you flying around every evening and thought that was all you were good for."

"My goodness! In Europe where we came from in the beginning, they think we're fine," laughed Mrs. Dor Beetle. That's why Squeedee calls us 'der beetles.' Here in America they call us 'June bugs.' I, for one, rather like the foreign name better. It sounds more distinguished. But, goodness! I mustn't waste so much time talking." And, without another word, Mrs. Dor Beetle spread her wings and sailed away.

David turned around to say something to Squeedee, but he, too, had disappeared, chuckling to himself, and David hurried home.

Another Fascinating Story Tomorrow.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky if You Are FORGIVING

ALL you born on this day have reason to congratulate yourselves, and there is every indication that you will prove to be helpful to mankind.

You will not necessarily rise to heights of Fame or Renown; your name will not possibly go down in history; but today you will be prompted (and, if you are wise, you will obey the promptings), to do something that will benefit the world in general, or do some good to your family, your own immediate community, or your own circle of friends.

The strongly developed intelligence, too, that you possess will avoid pitfalls and snares, and your Destiny will lead you to do that which is nearest at hand, with benefit to all concerned.

At other times you will be obsessed with dreams—impossible of realization. Today you will find something small or something large which you can do and which will bring happiness.

If you have had a long standing difference with a respected friend, today is the appointed time when you should let bygones be bygones.

If you have had a dispute with your partner—either married or business—today is the time for extending the olive branch and seeking a new beginning under a benign influence.

Let your good impulses of today guide you, even though they may, to your way of thinking, lead to actions that will prove futile in securing their object. Today is preeminently the day when there should prevail the spirit "to do unto others as you would that they should do unto you."

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"There is nothing so powerful as truth — and nothing so strange." are words from Webster's argument at the trial of the murderer of Capt. White.

"Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

Christ in these words warns his followers that they cannot serve two masters. Matthew v, 24.

"An ornament to society."

"Death hath many doors to let out life."

Many writers have dwelt on the multitude of causes of death. The words above are quoted from "The Customs of the Country," a play by Beaumont and Fletcher, published at the beginning of the seventeenth century.

"Wool Gathering."

This expression for day-dreaming or heedlessness is found in "The Family of Love," by Thomas Middleton.

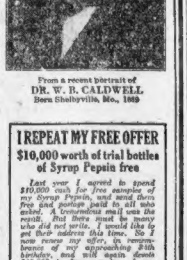
What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice



From a recent portrait of
DR. W. B. CALDWELL
Born Shelbyville, Mo., 1869

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1875. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting the use to nature as possible, hence my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. Any family laxative became all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite or sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

Causes for Neuritis Pain

Old Prescription Proves Very Effective

THE steady, excruciating ache of Neuritis that penetrates to the very bone, or that other form that feels like a "crick in the neck," yields very slowly to ordinary treatments. Neuritis is really inflammation of the nerves. Sometimes more than one set of nerves is affected—this is called multiple Neuritis and is apt to grow quickly fatal.

Because Neuritis is a nerve disease it usually yields very quickly to the quieting soothing effect of that old prescription dispensed in drug stores for nearly 20 years under the name of Orangeine. One or two powders is enough for most cases.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

USE MULSIFIED COCOANUT OIL

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for shampoo use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified well into it. Nothing but a abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The added stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every person has suffered, known as indigestion.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do more harm. Try having some all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no nourseas, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk—is harmless to the stomach. Inexpensive to take and is the most effective form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

WOMAN AIDE IS DOMINANT FIGURE

Washington, Feb. 23.—All prejudices against women as lawyers have been abandoned in the Department of Justice, where Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt is accorded a seat at the head of the table.

When Mrs. Willebrandt was named Assistant Attorney-General from California, there was a noticeable evidence of revolt on the part of the trained legal advisers of the department. It was the first time a woman had been so honored.

She had not been with the department long when Attorney-General Daugherty assigned to her the task of writing the department's opinion on the question of the application of the prohibition law to American ships on the high seas and foreign ships in American ports.

When Attorney-General Daugherty became ill there was no one in the department in whom more confidence was reposed than the woman lawyer. Old and young lawyers have deferred to her judgment.

There are those who say Mrs. Willebrandt has been acting Attorney-General during Mr. Daugherty's illness. This may be an exaggeration, but it is admitedly true she has been one of the dominating influences of the department.

PLAN $235,000 DRIVE TO 'KEEP BOSTON WELL'

Charles E. Mason, who is heading the Community Health Association Campaign which begins next week, was the host at the Union Club this noon for a luncheon given to the members of the Trade Committee of the Campaign, over which Felix Vorenberg is chairman.

The group had been called together for the purpose of outlining plans for soliciting the trades, and to deepen and strengthen understanding of the underlying principles of the Community Health Association.

Felix Vorenberg and Miss Gertrude Peabody spoke briefly and Wilmin Arthur Lippitt, President of the Community Health Association, outlined the work which stretches out ahead. He said in part:

"We are going out for $235,000 during the next two weeks, and to some of us at first sight our task may seem an appalling one. But I am convinced that we have only to make the public understand how much this Association does in 'keeping Boston well' and how adequately and efficiently it performs its work, to have the financial matter settle itself.

"Everybody knows how badly off we should have been without the district nurses when we had the 'flu.' The same kind of work is going on every day. Last Friday, at the height of that cold spell, there were 16,000 people in this city under the care of Community Health nurses.

"I am particularly proud of the record of the Baby Hygiene division of the work, which last year kept its infant mortality rate down to the astonishingly low rate of 15.78 per 1,000, as compared to the corresponding infant death rate for the City of Boston, which last year was 55.15."

RUM TRADE MAKES WEST INDIES RICH

New York, Feb. 23.—The West Indies are growing wealthy on the booming traffic with the United States. They are eagerly enlarging their commercial relations with America, but they evince no wish to join the country territorially, Viscount Burnham, proprietor of the London Daily Telegraph, said today. He just returned from a trip through the Bahamas, Jamaica and Cuba.

"If the dodo doubt the turnover in liquor has brought the Bahamas into a financial condition never dreamed of, giving her a surplus in her treasury, but I found the same evidence of beverage traffic in Cuba.

N. H. RIDERS ARE FORCED TO WALK

The train, due at South Station at 9:25 o'clock, was running on time. Commuters were rejoicing over the fact when the train stopped.

A train from Plymouth came along and stopped about a quarter mile on the Boston side of the broken-down engine. About 200 passengers boarded the South Shore train before it started. The other passengers continued the journey on foot.

BLIND VIOLINIST PROVES CAPABLE

By ZOE FABER.

Led across the stage of Jordan Hall by his accompanist, Abraham Haltowitsch, violinist, who has been blind since his very early youth, took up his bow and began to play.

Mr. Haltowitsch is a talented violinist. His technique is entirely capable and his interpretations are interesting. Beyond this, there is in the playing a quality that baffles analysis. It brings to mind the phrase "seen darkly as through a glass." Whether it is assumed by lack of joy, it is hard to say. But when it comes to the things that require a deeper voice with a richer quality to it, that is the sort of music that finds its best sung by the bow of the violinist in question.

Mr. Henry Levine was the necessarily sympathetic and skillful accompanist that the occasion demanded.

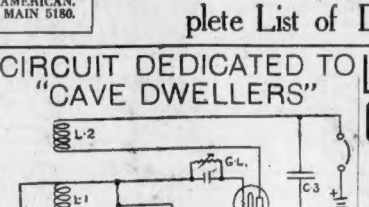
CIRCUIT DEDICATED TO "CAVE DWELLERS"



RECEIVES WITHOUT AERIAL

A modification of the Flewelling circuit with which a New York "cave-dweller" got local stations without an aerial on one tube, L1 is 35-turn honeycomb, L2, a 75-turn honeycomb; C1, a 13-plate variable condenser; C2, a three-plate vernier condenser; C3, a .00035 phone condenser. Tube is a WD-11 with 1½ volts on filament and 40 volts on plate. Coupling between L1 and L2 is very critical and must be very loose, and grid leak (GL) must be variable and is also critical in adjustment.

LEGAL EXPERTS CONFER ON LAW INSTITUTE

Washington, Feb. 23.—Probably the most distinguished gathering of the legal profession in the history of the nation assembled here today for the conference called by the committee on the establishment of a permanent organization for the improvement of the law to consider formation of an American law institute.

Primarily the function of the institute, as described, would be to remedy defects in the law and its application by its "analytical, critical and constructive" restatement.

A report by the committee, of which Elihu Root is chairman, based on an exhaustive study of the question of improvement of the law and recommending the that end the formation of the institute, had been prepared for the consideration of the conference.

In addition to jurists, lawyers and law teachers from every State, the committee had invited the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, the Attorney-General and Solicitor General, the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of all State Supreme Courts, Deans of all principal law schools, and more than a hundred other prominent persons.

In the report prepared for the conference the Committee outlined the aims which it believed should be undertaken to the remedy for what the committee regarded as the chief defects in American law.

These defects, the report states, cause "useless litigation, prevent reform in the courts to enforce just rights, make it impossible to advise persons of their rights, and when litigation is begun, create delay and expense."

Bricklaying and Selling

And "Absolute Right"

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Mr. Hillquit, an able, clear-thinking radical, in a debate with Samuel Untermyer, says: "Workers have the absolute right to limit the number of bricks they will lay for a stipulated daily wage, just as brick dealers have the right to limit the number of bricks they will sell for a specified sum."

That SOUNDS true and IS true, BUT

The difficulty is that both brick dealers and bricklayers combine in various ways to prevent the house BUILDER from getting a better bargain elsewhere. The brick merchant sees to it that he doesn't BUY his bricks any cheaper, the bricklayers' union sees to it that he doesn't get them LAID any cheaper.

As to the "absolute right" in that there is a question in some minds.

Hultman Is Needed

There is a plan among those who do not like the independence of Mr. Hultman, Commissioner of the Necessaries of Life, to allow his commission to die by failing to appropriate money for its expenses.

We have no doubt that those who are profiting by this coal scarcity are among the leaders in this conspiracy. They do not like the knowledge which Mr. Hultman has of the utter farce of this whole coal scarcity business. They do not like his knowledge that this coal scarcity is absolutely without excuses, that it is nothing but a conspiracy for profiteering, in which mine owners and railroads and coal dealers are all more or less involved.

We do not see how any member of the Legislature can vote to allow the Commission on the Necessaries of Life to die when it is so necessary to this community. Any man who votes to let it die is liable to regret it both in conscience and in other more practical respects.

Gambling in Rhode Island

The Democratic Governor of Rhode Island and the Democratic members of the Rhode Island government have declared war against the notorious gambling institutions of that State. They assert that gambling has existed in Rhode Island to her shame because the Republican machine, for years in control of the State, profited by a secret liaison with the gambling elements.

The present Democratic Governor says that there is nothing in the nature of the people of Rhode Island or in the economic or social conditions of Rhode Island which justifies the gambling and its consequent evils, which have notoriously flourished in that State for so many years. He proposes, and the Democrats support him in his plan, to demonstrate that the officials of the Rhode Island government can suppress gambling in that State and that the people of the State will stand behind them when they do it. If the Governor is successful in suppressing gambling there, he will demonstrate that the Rhode Island Republican machine was responsible for gambling, and he will not only be doing his State and country a great service, but will also do his party a great service.

It Teaches Caution in Regard to Mobs

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Ebert, President of the German Republic, called upon the whole nation "to join in a gigantic procession on the first Sunday" after the French occupation, to protest against that invasion of the Ruhr.

But the Prussian chief of police said: "No parade. Who knows what the mob might do?"

If they had established their republic ten years ago, and got rid of their Emperor then, the Germans would not have been put into the national procession downhill that started in 1914, and they would not be where they are now. Instead of marching "in protest," which means nothing, the German chief thought should be a determination not to allow the military spirit to get hold of them again, and put them into the imperial downhill goose step.

Equal Pay for Teachers

We hope that the Legislature will give the Boston teachers equal pay for equal service.

It would seem that the very statement of the proposition would be its own demonstration. Upon what earthly ground can equal pay for equal service be justly denied? What we pay for is the teacher's service and why should we pay a woman less for rendering equal service?

We have an idea that the Legislature this year will see the wisdom of granting equal pay for equal service. They are liable to realize, if they reflect, that both justice and POLICY TODAY require them to vote for equal pay for equal service.

New York Buys the Braves

So New York interests have bought our Boston Braves baseball team. Thus the ball team passes with all the rest of New England things to the control of New York.

When is it going to stop? New England earns the money, establishes the enterprise and then goes off and leaves it for the predatory interests of Wall Street to seize it and drag it to their lairs.

What is the matter with New England enterprises? We have the highest per capita wealth in the country—the most skilled labor. We have the greatest industrial traditions. We still have some of the greatest industries. We have a healthful if not a pleasant climate. We have a beautiful country. Why can we not keep our own?

PICTURE OF 'THE OLD WOMAN'

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

IT is not long since we were all talking of the New Woman. By this time she has become so well established—at least in America—that even she takes herself for granted.

Perhaps, before the "old woman" quite disappears, it might be interesting to go through the gallery and have a look at one of the oldest of the type.

Of course, your menage boasts a Bible. Or, perhaps, it doesn't "boasts" of one, but at least respectfully harbors that ancient volume. So take the Book from the shelf, blow off the dust, turn to the Book of Proverbs, last chapter.

There you have a picture of her—the Old Woman that has served as a model for countless millions of Jews and Christians, these 2,000 years or more.

Faithful, loyal, far-sighted, attentive to immediate needs, frugal, thrifty, hard-working, charitable, dignified, wise, kind, blessed by her children, adored by her husband, God-fearing.

But just this word needs to be added: The New Woman of these democratic days will have to "go some" to distance that dear Old Woman.

Auction Capt. Cook's Diary

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Students of Australian history are excited about the forthcoming auction sale at Sotheby's of Captain Cook's original diary, containing several hundred folios of his entries. The trustees of most institutions of learning in Australia itself are handicapped by lack of funds, but it is understood that the Mitchell Library in Sydney is prepared to bid heavily.

Of recent years American buyers have been eagerly securing original documents regarding the early history of Australia, and they will be probably represented at the auction.

Criminals

Editor Boston American:

Having read with much interest your exposure of the coal situation, would like to say, is not the present situation clearly one of where a combination did combine and conspire with premeditation and aforethought to unlawfully make a scarcity of one of the essentials of life, viz., heat, knowing full well the consequences to deprive life within animal or vegetable from the life-giving element of heat. Are they not criminals in the eyes of their Creator and of mankind? C. S.

Has Warm Home

Editor Boston American:

The question is: "Did Mr. Phelan break his own fourth commandment by filling his own coal bins" Yes, he did by filling his bins with coal for furnace and range. Why is he allowed to do it while the poor shiver? It is nice to drive up to a warm home in a heated limousine, but what of those who gave him his job?

MRS. LILLIAN R. PAUL.

Nothing Left

Editor Boston American:

I think Mr. Phelan has not kept his rule himself, but I think he has for us, because we can't do anything else but take what he didn't want for himself, and that is almost nothing.

ARTHUR W. LOOMIS.

Springfield, Mass.

Broke His Rule

Editor Boston American:

I'll say yes, Mr. Phelan did break his own commandment, as also he broke the commandment of God, for He said, "As ye do unto one of these little ones ye do also unto Me." He left these little ones to suffer cold and sickness while he had "plenty and to spare" in his heated home.

MRS. ALMIRA E. PACKARD.

Brockton.

Powerful Ring

Editor Boston American:

Did Mr. Phelan break his own rule? No, he did not, for Mr. Phelan did not have a rule of his own. No one man has power to cause the suffering, sickness and deaths that are now known in Massachusetts by reason of the shortage of fuel.

Mr. Phelan is but a small atom of a powerful ring whose centre is at Washington, D. C., and many of those who today are suffering, sickening, dying voted that same ring into power.

Shoes Offered

Editor Helping Hand:

I think you are doing a wonderful work for the poor, and I wish I could help a great deal more. I have two pairs of women's shoes and a pair of men's shoes, size 8½, that I will gladly give to the cause.

B. N. H.

ED. NOTE—We are sending you the address of a woman in need of shoes of the size you mention, and will send a man's address as soon as we have a candidate for that size.

Sends Shorthand Book

Editor Helping Hand:

I noticed an inquiry in yesterday's Boston American from Mrs. L. P. for a Gregg shorthand book. I am mailing one to you to forward to her. I think the Helping Hand feature a most wonderful help. Anything that we can do to help our fellow-men we are doing something for ourselves at the same time.

J. D. McE.

ED. NOTE—The book will be forwarded to Mrs. L. P. May we ask that other readers hold their offerings until the recipient's address is forwarded them rather than send them to the American office. The letters alone keep us comfortably busy.

Seven Children

Editor Helping Hand:

Would like to know if some kind person has any children's clothes they don't want, as I have seven children, a girl 15, four boys 7, 6, 5 and 3, a girl 1½ and a baby boy five weeks old. I am laid up in bed and don't know when I will get up, as I have a bad leg.

MRS. F. L. C.

Gives Crib and Mattress

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will kindly put me in touch with Mrs. J. R., I can give her the crib and mattress that she has asked for. If someone has already supplied this lady, you may know of some other needy party to whom the above articles may be sent.

A. H.

ED. NOTE—There have been many requests from needy mothers for just these things. The address of one will be sent you.

Industrial Music Bolsheviki Idea

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—The only music that should be offered the masses is that which suggests factories, coal, electricity and locomotives, is the opinion of the musical critic of a Moscow paper, in an article expressing his revolutionary ideas on the subject of musical heroes. He says further:

"Classical music is nauseating for any one of revolutionary tendencies. Bach, Haydn and Gluck personify the feudal state. Tschaikowsky is the composer of the vested landowners; Schubert, Schuman and Chopin are little bourgeoise knaves. Wagner's music was written for the junkers and the capitalists."

Beethoven and Mozart find more favor in the eyes of the revolutionary critic, although he finds the latter unduly tinged with Catholicism.

ABOUT THE COAL SHORTAGE THAT DOESN'T EXIST

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. HARDING has been assured that coal shortage is now largely imaginary.

Which, of course, explains closed schools, unheated hospitals and churches, the steady increase of flu cases, the rapid spread of pneumonia, and particularly, the story of the woman who froze in her house because money couldn't fill the furnace.

Imagination, too, is seizing trains and confiscating anthracite shipments. Orderly communities only adopt such measures when cellar bins are overflowing.

The protests from New England, which Senator Walsh continues to read into the record, are all mailed from happy heated households.

The administration, however, will find very real votes—and many Republican votes at that—cast against its re-election if the Capitol muck longer disregards the dire straits of shivering, stormbound sections.

Malone Watches the Cars Roll By

Ship subsidy does not interest America half so much, just now, as shipment to subsidized coal dealers across the line.

What the country wants from Chairman Meyer and the Interstate Commerce Commission is shovels of coal, not buckets of whitewash.

Perhaps Mr. Meyer does not know of the hundred cars a day passing through Malone, New York. Coal for Canada, while Malone is limited to five hundred-pound lots and a perilous thermometer puts the price of wood to $150 a cord.

That's some more "imagination."

Mr. Meyer's pressing job for the moment is to obtain a statement from Standpatter Lorce, president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, who hasn't yet told how many tons of his coal went and are still going into the dominion—nor the prices charged there. Quantities from all sources so far in excess of export needs that a surplus is available for shipment to the United States. Prices that enable folk across the border to undersell our own dealers.

It's Mr. Meyer's duty to discover what apportionment was made of the 741,379-ton Delaware & Hudson output in January. And it is our intention to have that information.

Mene, Mene, Teckle Upharsin

The fuel problem aban't be dismissed with a straw hat and palm-leaf-fan gesture. We can't be talked out of our chills. Hot air won't heat cold rooms. Zero weather defies Coue treatment.

The courts made short shift of the Manhattan landlord who appeared in Summer clothes before chattering tenants and assured them that the proper attitude of mind would work wonders.

The nation is ready to work wonders with mine owners and coal carriers that don't do their economic duty and serve America first.

"Mene, mene, teckel upharsin"—it's a short step from seized trains to seizing legislation.

Mr. Harding seems very poorly advised in this matter. Those who warn him that interference with certain foreign customers may inaugurate retaliatory embargoes, and gentlemen reputed to be concerned over the Niagara Power Company's vulnerable dependence upon the Canadian Falls are not so potent as the strength of great States that may "scratch" him at the next convention unless he heeds their needs now.

Boll Weevil, the Billion Dollar Bug

The South has no fuel troubles. The boll weevil is eating peace of mind there. Not to mention several billion dollars' worth of cotton per decade. The President, at his vigorous best, writes to tell us that no cost and no time should be spared in checking that wrecking appetite.

State and Federal action are both necessary. All the resources of local and national governments should be strained to save the plantations and safeguard them from further ravages.

Science knows what to do. The only missing ingredient in the prescription is money—and that should come out of the common as well as local pockets. Sectional prosperity and depression are alike infectious.

Cotton shortage exacts its penalty from planter and mill and consumer. If we don't destroy weevil, weevil will ruin a priceless industry.

Child Labor, Russian Relief and Scraps of Paper

The Senate Judiciary Committee reports favorably on the child labor law. Illiteracy is a mental weevil. Boys and girls belong in schools, not factories. Premature riding breaks the colt and his back, too. Mill slaves profit no community.

South Carolina should cast the first vote for this act and so wipe out the shame of sending the heaviest quota of unread into the war training camps.

Progressive and enlightened people do not exploit helplessness. Let's make it unanimous this time.

Russia, with eight millions of her people clutched by famine, will shortly sell thirty-five thousand tons of grain for Finnish marks or American dollars or print paper.

Lenine is prepared to literally take the bread out of the mouths of his peasants to secure propaganda material. American relief should whisper a word in the great man's ear.

Dr. Scott of the British Museum has found another element—he calls it Hafnium. Invention and science are moving so fast nowadays that one must keep newspaper clippings of discovery—dictionaries can't keep pace with progress.

A New Jersey doctor died in his automobile and the machine kept running in a rut with his cold hand at the wheel. There's a parable in that. All ruts are more or less filled with dead issues running on momentum.

The jurists at The Hague have unanimously decided that the bombardment of open towns shall be prohibited in future wars. What they haven't decided is, who'll have the "hows" of enforcement.
